Black and Gold

PUBLISHED ANNUALLY BY THE BLACK AND GOLD PUBLICA-TION STAFFS OF THE WINSTON-SALEM CITY HIGH SCHOOLS

> North Carolina Room Forsyth County Public Library 660 West Fifth Street Winston-Salem, NC 27101

Jack and Jill
Climbed up the hill
To get an education
Jack fell down
But Jill went on
To reach her graduation.

Remember Those Days We Spent

Let's turn back the clock! Remember those glorious days we spent when we were children? They may call us dignified seniors now, but we still have a wistful longing for those merry times we had not so long ago. Remember had we used to get spanked for climbing trees in our Sunday clothes? And how we never did quite understand about Jack breaking his crown when he fell down? For a short time let's reminisce—about Mother Goose—about our high school days—Let's have a childhood theme!

Jack was nimble, Jack was quick.

Jack didn't stop with the candle stick.

He used the contents of this book—

He didn't have to look and look!!

Don't Forget Your Compass

Let's explore! No, it's not the dark interior of Africa or the cold Antarctic region but the 1939 Black and Gold this time. From a bird's eye view we find that there are four main divisions of the book—the three schools: Hanes, South, and Reynolds; and the feature section. By dragging out our microscopes we discover that the material from each high school is divided into different sections: faculty, classes, organization, and sports. The feature section proves to be a rare specimen worthy of some study as it is composed of priceless student snapshots as well as unusual subjects of the literary staff.

Winston-Salem School Board

Serving as an aid in directing and supervising the affairs of the Winston-Salem public schools, the School Board, composed of T. W. Blackwell, C. E. Elberson, Mrs W. L. Wharton, J. H. Brunt, Dr. W. H. Sprunt Jr., E. F. Tullock, J. W. Moore, Superintendent of Winston-Salem Schools, and B. S. Womble, Chairman, has served the schools both faithfully and skillfully. Their aim—to broaden the field of education by preparing students to become better leaders of tomorrow—has been conscientiously followed and carried out. For their continued service and guidance, the students of the three city high schools offer their sincere gratitude.

'Snow Magic — Just Winter

Hanes High School

Bells— classes— sports— music— guidance— friendship— all these things we experience during a day within the walls of John W. Hanes High School. The doorway we enter each morning is an open portal to new opportunities, new contacts, and new means of self-development. May the door never close to those in search of a fuller life.

To
Miss Carrie Meek Dungan

Loyal Friend, Inspiring Teacher, and Wise Counselor during our school days at John W. Hanes High, we, the members of the graduating class of 1938-'39 gratefully and sincerely dedicate our section of The Black and Gold

JANUARY CLASS POEM

Una White, Poet

The highway of life is winding—
Its roadbed wet with tears—
Through sun-kissed meadows of beauty,
O'er mountains of doubts and fears.
Turning, twisting, ever onward—
Every mile a courage test;
Tears, laughter, sorrow, and joyLife's uncertain at its best.
Yet, bravely we've set our courses,
Determinedly we've said:
"This be our motto—this our creed:
Be sure you're right—then go ahead!"

The happy years have brought us
The looked-for goal, at last;
We stand at the fateful crossroads,
Our carefree schooldays past.
Faces set to the rising sun,
See the dawn of another day.
With eager hearts and courage high,
We start on our unknown way.
There'll be many a doubtful by-path
To lure us with its gaudy spread—
Yet, we will pause and whisper:
"Be sure you're right—then go ahead!"

JUNE CLASS POEM

Margie Fulp, Poet

We give our praise to thee, Hanes High For knowledge, experience, and joy Found within thy open doors.

Oft victory we did not attain
Still, we reaped from failure its gain.

Alma Mater we pledge allegiance
Our loyalty and true obedience
To high standards and ideals
Maintained during years of learning
To which Fate grants no returning.

Now while standing on the threshold Eager for the future untold Need is felt of sage advice Given by more noble souls To save us from unworthy goals.

True, few of us may garner fame
But may we live lives without blame
So that memories may come forth
Of time well spent for good of some
Who needed help of small deeds done.

Government of the students, by the students and for the students.

HANES HIGH JANUARY CLASS HISTORY

Margaret Knott, Historian

January, 1939, and only seven members of our class are left to complete the journey on the highway of Education.

Five years ago, we, the graduating class of January, 1939, entered the high school grades with the determination that we really would make history!

Since law and order had to be kept in our school, Una White and Gray Shermer were among those who were chosen to serve on the Board of Aldermen and the Police Club. In 1936, Gray was elected Mayor of North High School. This was indeed an honor for our class, as well as for Gray!

Rassie Mae Holcomb, Margie Mashburn, and Gray Shermer have been a great help to the Music Department of our school. All three of them have been members of the Glee Club and High School Chorus since coming to this school.

Lucile Edwards and Leon Goforth have been assistants to the librarian, helping with library work. Lucile is also president of the Library Page Club.

Una White and Lucile Edwards are the two members of the class who have taken an interest in journalism. Lucile has served as Associate Editor of the Black and Gold and as a member of the Pine Whispers staff. Una has also served on the Pine Whispers staff.

Taking an interest in sports were: Margaret Knott, Una White, Gray Shermer, and Leon Goforth. Una has been a member of the girls' baseball team for four years and a member of the soccer team for three years. Gray has been an outstanding member of the football, baseball and basketball teams since he began his high school career.

In 1937 our school's name was changed, and we suddenly found that we were no longer students of North High School, but of J. W. Hanes High School!

Two other important events took place in this same year: Gray Shermer was awarded a Service Monogram for outstanding service to the school. This is the highest honor that a Hanes High School student can receive, so we felt mighty proud of Gray! The other event was that Una White even surprised herself by learning that she could write poetry! She was awarded the prize for writing the Hanes High Alma Mater.

In the spring of 1938, when all of us should have been making plans to graduate in June, we began to drop subjects so we wouldn't have to graduate!

In the fall of 1938, we had a very easy time electing class officers and superlatives. Since there are only seven members of the class, we just made up one committee and didn't have to appoint them. After a lot of fun, class officers were elected as follows: Presdent, Lucile Edwards: Vice-President, Una White; Secretary, Rassie Mae Holcomb; and Treasurer, Leon Goforth

In November 1938, Una White became the second member of our class and the sixteenth student of our school to be awarded a Service Monogram.

The Junior-Senior banquet will remain in our memories as one of the most outstanding events of our high school days.

Class Night and Graduation will always be a high light in our memories. These nights mark the time when we stepped from the Highway of Education, into the Highway of Life. As we stepped upon this new highway, our thoughts turned back to our class poem and we thought of these words:

"There'll be many a doubtful by-path
To lure us with its gaudy spread
Yet we will pause and whisper:
Be sure you're right—then go ahead!"

Believe it or not, we're being educated.

HANES HIGH JANUARY CLASS PROPHECY

Gray Shermer, Prophet

Setting: Bowman Gray Memorial Stadium Winston-Salem, N. C.

Time: November 11, 1945.

Reason: Hanes High—South High annual football game and homecoming for Hanes.

I wandered along the fence toward the east gate. It was early and the crowd had not begun to gather. As I started to enter the gate, I met an old classmate. It was none other than Leon Goforth. I was hoping I would run across some of my classmates, for I had not seen any of them in four years. Leon was dressed fit to kill; looked as though he had struck a gold mine. I learned later that he is an office employee at the Reynolds Tobacco Company, and is in order for promotion.

After I talked for sometime to Leon, somebody called from inside the gate for him to come on. We said "goodbye" to each other, and he trotted off.

I bought my ticket and proceeded to go inside. There someone else spoke to me—"Hello, Gray!" I turned around and, to my surprise, was faced by another classmate, Rassie Mae Holcomb, or rather it was Holcomb when we went to school together. We chatted over old times as do friends when they meet. Rassie, as you know, is a star in opera and doing well at it too.

Rassie left me to find her seat before the game started. I thought I might wander a little more before game time and probably see some more of my old friends. I stood at the top of the stands peering down over the crowd, when suddenly I spied another familiar face—that of Lucile Edwards. She was also a classmate of mine.

I jumped over benches and almost fell trying to reach her before I lost sight of her because the crowd was thickening. We had a friendly greeting and talked over a few things that came up in our senior year. Lucile is the editor of a magazine as you might already know. Partings were said hurriedly because of the hustle of trying to find seats.

I started back to the top of the stands when I saw three more familiar faces. They were Una White, Margaret Knott, and Margie Mashburn. Much to my surprise they had met, just as I had met the others, by accident. We talked about our work and things of the past. It was done so hurriedly I didn't catch half that was said. Una is a private secretary; Margaret is also a secretary, and Margie is the wife of a well-known Hanes alumnus, who is now president of the Wachovia Bank.

Well, where would you expect to find an old member of a football team, if his home team were playing? In the dressing room, of course. And so I went on with a light and happy heart, after meeting all of my senior classmates.

Folks is the queerest people.

HANES HIGH JANUARY CLASS WILL

We, the January graduating class of the John W. Hanes High School, small in number, but mighty in minds, do hereby make known to those interested, our last will and testament.

Article I

Section I: We hope Mr. Haltiwanger, our beloved principal who has given us many of his famous talks, will forgive us for trying to listen to them with our eyes closed. We leave him an alarm clock to prevent those who come after us from doing likewise.

Section II: To Miss Dungan, who has been our faithful task-mistress, we leave the sole possession of all honors and proud memories accidentally made by the January class of '39.

Section III: To the faculty, who long ago gave up trying to reform us, we bequeath our very earnest appreciation for the efforts they have put forth in our behalf.

Section IV: To Mr. Pratt, our esteemed band leader, we leave the well-known "Fats" Morgan and his Jazz band, so that they will be able to give him the latest dope on "swing".

Section V: To the oncoming Seniors, the January graduating class leaves its positions, with the hope that they will be able to fill them. By special request, we exclude Margie Mashburn.

Article II

Section I: Rassie Mae Holcomb leaves to Rachel Berry her ability to "catch the boys." We hope Rachel will use it to a good advantage!

Section II: To Mr. Johnston, Leon Goforth leaves his superior handwriting. Perhaps Mr. Johnston will be able now to read what he writes.

Section III: To Margie Fulp, Una White leaves an extra foot of her height, for which Margie has been pleading.

Section IV: Lucile Edwards bequeaths her smile to Pauline Coleman, who is sadly in need of one.

Section V: To anyone who feels the need of them, Margie Mashburn gracefully leaves a few extra pounds of weight.

Section VI: Gray Shermer leaves all the extra courses that he didn't take to Leo Hutcherson with the hope that he will make good use of them before married life sets in.

Section VII: To Hazel Futrell, Margaret Knott bequeaths her speaking ability. Now perhaps Hazel will be able to say what she means.

Article III

Section I: We do hereby appoint as sole executor of this, our Last Will and Testament, Miss Maude Hale, she being the last word in Law. We hope there will be no disputes, arguments, or alterations.

In witness, whereas we, the January graduating class of 1939, do hereunto set our hand and seal this, the twenty-seventh day of January, in the year of nineteen hundred and thirty-nine.

HANES HIGH JUNE CLASS HISTORY

Pauline Coleman, Historian

It was in the fall of 1935 that the "Mama's Darling" troupe of the City High Schools decided to appear for four consecutive years of performance at North Junior High School. (The name was changed in 1937 to John W. Hanes.)

We had the ambition and desire to give a good performance. In our freshman year the adviser who helped the members of the troupe perfect their acts was Miss Nicholson. With the help and understanding of Miss Nicholson, we began to see the light.

We got through the freshman year with a successful production, although some of the troupe dropped out and new ones came in.

The second year of our run, Mr. R. F. Johnston and Miss Alma Woodmore helped us over the rough spots. We had some dreary, rainy days but we kept up our appearance as best we could. We began to settle down and really give a worth-while performance, one that would gain us the vision of our junior year.

During our junior year, we had many trials and tribulations and the road was slippery, but Miss Maude Hale helped make the journey easy. By this time many were well known for their features and had received certificates of reward. Some had almost reached their goal, while others had fallen out in utter despair. The Junior-Senior which was held December 20, 1937 at the Robert E. Lee Hotel will be remembered as the most important scene of our Junior year.

We came to the last year of our performance; some had become a finished product in their act, while others were where they started. Miss Nicholson and Miss Dungan helped us make the final curtain. The leading characters in the fourth act of our high school drama were Robert Hampton-President of the troupe, Hilda Futrell-Vice President, Mallie Mae Bennett -Secretary, Nancy Lee Hanes-Treasurer. Our contract had expired, and some had theirs renewed for a half year. When we came to the end, forty five of us had successfully played our parts throughout the four years. Class Day and Graduation will long be treasured among our many memories, and we will always remember our motto: "Give to the world the best, and the best will come back to you." That's what we tried to do at John W. Hanes High School.

Ain't we got fun?

HANES HIGH JUNE CLASS PROPHECY

John Wooten, Prophet

The time is 1941, the place Paris, France, and the speaker, your foreign newspaper correspondent in Gay Paree. So on with the news! Velma Ree Bowman and Nancy Moore have just arrived in Paris. They flew from New York as a publicity stunt after being proclaimed the year's most popular debutantes. It has been estimated by a well-known columnist, that their debuts cost over $100,000 each.

They inform us that the current Broadway success, "Helzafloppin" stars Elizabeth Tate, Jenny Lou West, Sue Williams and Wanda Woodruff under assumed names, respectively, Lizzy Taper, Jenny Westki, Sue Williamson, and Wanda Woodruffian. The Coleman sisters, Kathleen and Pauline, are very successful employees of the "U-Tellum" propaganda bureau.

Hazel Futrell and Keefie Jackson, well-known night club warblers, have just introduced their own composition a smash song hit, "There's an Old Roulette Wheel in the Parlor."

Leo Hutcherson is working in "The Tingling Bros. Circus" under the name of "Leo the Lionman". He has just been proclaimed the world's champion weight-lifter.

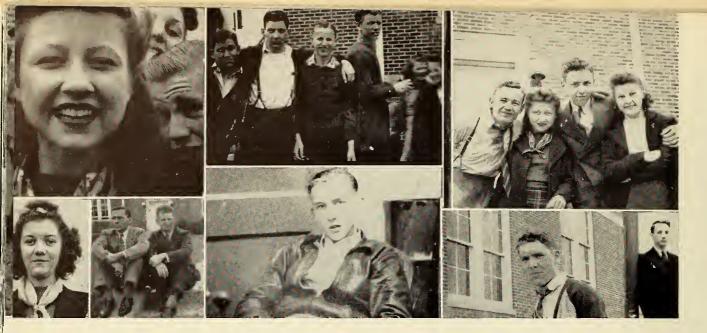

R. T. Casey, the great lover, is now co-starring with Ruth Davis in the new picture "Hearts in a Whirlwind." This is the first time they have co-starred since they both won the Academy Award for their work in "Love Finds R. T. Casey," and "Little Girl, What Next?" These pictures have been directed by Cecil B. De Martin one time movie projector at Hanes High School. Edna Simmons has just won a trip to Hollywood and a screen test by saving Octagon Soap coupons.

Bill Ray is chief hairdresser and manicurist at the "Elixir of Youth Beauty Salon." Mary Feimster, Daisy Pierce, and Helen Kiser are partners in the Acme Hairpin and Tractor Company.

John Wooten and Norman White are sole operators of the "Little Giant Canopener Company." Bobby Atkinson and LeRoy Bovender are the United States' contribution to the 1941 tiddledewinks team. Sports writers give them the edge over all competition. J. A. Adams has just completed the unfinished part of the Unfinished Symphony and is now playing in Carnegie Hall. Thomas Stewart, Roy Turner and James Vernon have been sent to South Africa on an expedition to find the Lost Chord. They were sent by the Fortissimo Brothers, Research Laboratories Incorporated.

Beatrice Harding and E. H. Knight are joint partners in the "Tiddle Towel Company," and in the radio business we have Mallie Mae Bennett as the outstanding female news commentator of the day and Gerry Murphy as the sound effect woman on the Chube Rose Dipsey Snuff program. Margie Fulp and Bob Shook are happily married and are engaged in the running of the Bumpkin Corner confectionary. When you're bumping down Bumpkin way bump in and see them. And speaking of bumping, Margaret Vaughan is now bouncer in "Tap O' the Morning Night Club." Robert Hampton is an expert No. 1 janitor, and Henrietta Caldwell and Virginia Highfill are headed by Webster Lineback in the Sulfide Munitions Company of Humbug, Germany. Pauline Russell, a beautiful Spanish dancer, has just won the heart of James Harrington foremost bull-fighter of the day. And in conclusion, Lucille White and Frances Ogburn, outstanding sports women of the day, have just won the womens' doubles championship in Chinese Checkers.

> So Long, Your foreign correspondent, John Wooten

Just one thing and another.

HANES HIGH JUNE CLASS WILL

We, the Senior Class of John W. Hanes High School, do bequeath, as sanely as possible after having had knowledge bored into our noggins for four years, our stupendous talents and our most treasured features, if we have any, to the incoming senior Class and to the faculty.

Article I

Section I: To Mr. Haltiwanger and the faculty we extend our sincerest appreciation for the kind efforts shown us during our high school years, even though they probably did no good.

Section II: To Miss Dungan, our ever patient teacher, we sadly submit our understanding of the Tragedy of Macbeth to pass on to the incoming Senior Class. May someone pity them!

Section III: To Miss Carter we give our worn-out Senior athletes. We hope Miss Carter will use them for a better team in the future.

Article II

Section I: To Baine Gabriel, R. T. Casey wills his position on the Police Force. Maybe Baine will quiet down next year.

Section II: Virginia Highfill wills her intellectual ability to Billy Nicholson. Billy, we hope you will win a medal now.

Section III: Leo Hutcherson sadly bequeaths his football ability to "Bone-Crusher" Robbins.

Section IV: To Helen Stewart and Anne Ruth Whitlow, the Coleman twins will their dignity to keep it in good practice.

Section V: Bobby Atkinson submits his good looks to Dick Helsabeck. Make good use of them, Dick.

Section VI: Sue Williams and John Wooten will their height to Frances Bannister and E. H. Self. Maybe Frances and E. H. will be able to see better in a crowd now. Section VII: James Harrington wills all his dates with Pauline Russell to Grady Reich. Grady, run if John gets jealous.

Section VIII: To Martha, Hilda Futrell leaves her rival—that is, if Gray and Martha agree.

Section IX: To "Fats" Morgan, Webster Lineback leaves his baritone horn. With this added burden we think maybe the band can make more noise.

Section X: Elizabeth Tate wills her beauty to Marcelene Lester.

Section XI: Bill Morgan wills his places on the athletic teams to John Hall to give John a great big boost.

Section XII: Nancy Moore and E. H. Knight present Ivis Hicks and Gilbert Snipes their flirting powers. Their spirits will spur Ivis and Gilbert on, we hope.

Section XIII: Frances Ogburn wills her ability to talk in Study Hall to Carol Branscomb.

Section XIV: To R. F. Ball, Leroy Bovender wills his ability to make things out of wood. We hope R. F. will make something above an "F" now.

Section XV: Beatrice Harding leaves her desire to ride in the first cab to soccer games to Dorothy Rumley. "Novistine quil fere dico", Miss Carter?

Section XVI: Bill Ray bequeaths his rough and ready football magnetism to Ed Southern, so that Ed can make Coach Johnston's team.

Section XVII: Keeffie Jackson and Edna Simmons sing so well that they are leaving their beautiful voices to Marjorie Stevenson and Mildred Maners.

Section XVIII: Norman White leaves his singing ability to Horace Adams. Maybe the minstrel will bring better returns next time.

Section XIX: Mary Feimster wills her ability to play basketball to Katherine Welborne. Be sure to (Continued to page 153)

DEBATING TEAM

Demosthenes had nothing on the debaters at Hanes High who have journeyed to Chapel Hill four out of the five times that they have entered the State Triangular Debates. The query for this year was: Resolved: That the United States Should Form An Alliance With Great Britain. The team defeated Dobson and North Wilkesboro in the first round.

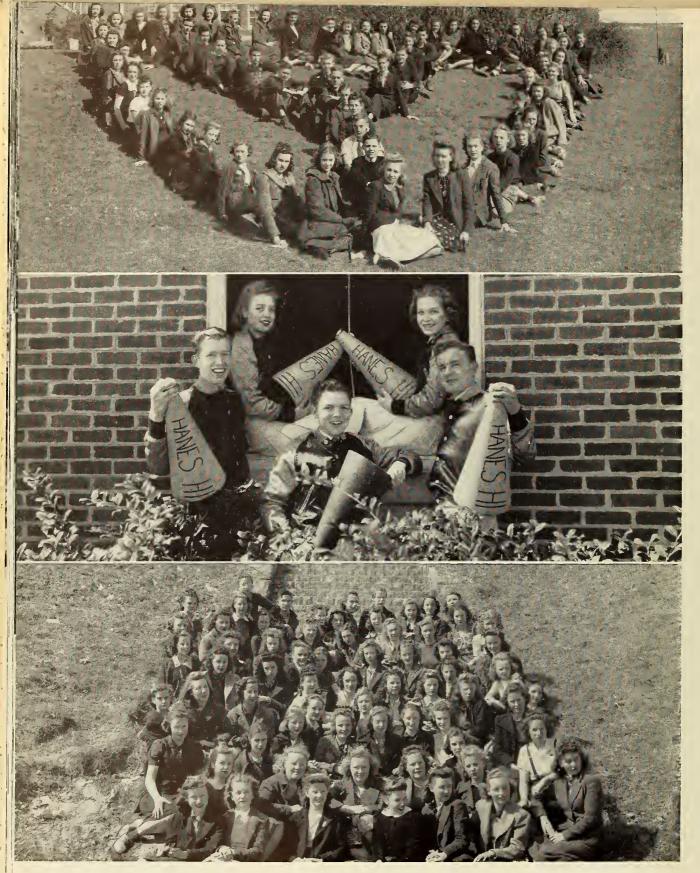

James Harrington and Hilda Austin composed the affirmative team; Margie Fulp and Marshall Moore, the negative. Alternates were Evelyn Alexander and E. B. Mc-Bride, and Miss Lelah Nell Masters was coach.

South High School

The rhythmic beat of leather against concrete announces the arrival of Mr. and Miss South High—as once more they round the corner and hasten eagerly along the cool, undulating walk that winds its way past the ball park and tennis court. Let's join them for the day!

With One Accord—

То

Mrs. Lavenia Fuller Robinson

for her loyal support, her beneficial guidance, and her true friendship, we gratefully dedicate this section of the BLACK AND GOLD.

From The Principal's Pen

"This year has been one of expansion for us—not only in terms of added rooms and equipment, but also in things pertaining to growth of mind and character. May this issue of the Black and Gold serve as a pleasant reminder of the hours of work and play which were your individual contribution to the development of that spirit of growth at South."

South Sincerely Appreciates

the friendly, untiring, and unselfish services that Miss Kathleen Hall renders the students of the school.

SOUTH HIGH JANUARY CLASS HISTORY

Elizabeth Crews, Historian

When we bedazzled little freshmen entered high school, we had no idea that we would climb to the heights of knowledge and leadership we have now gained. And there were so many people! They seemed happy. Could it be that we were only seeing the gloomy side of high school life? Soon, however, we were jolly little freshmen running around quite at home in "our" new school.

During our Freshman and Sophomore years we were combined with students from the seventh through the ninth grades. We were not yet so interested in the school activities, but everone was working hard to lead his class in each subject. As we drifted into our Sophomore year, we were well enough acquainted with the teachers, organizations, and rules to begin holding small positions in the student organizations. As the years rolled by, though, we began to climb to the top.

In our Junior year our class was organized, and the most outstanding event was the Junior-Senior Dance at the Country Club. Also in this year Ormel Walker was elected vice-president of the school, later to become president. This gave our class a great honor. Those having outstanding school jobs were J. W. Sharpe, Ormel Walker, Erma Joyner, and Louise Ervin.

Slowly our Senior year rolled around. We were diginified Seniors at last, and in the early fall of 1938 we were given those coveted Senior Privileges.

The leadership of our class was placed in the capable hands of J. W. Sharpe, president; Estelle Welch, vice-president; Birchel Griffin, secretary; and Monroe Caffey, treasurer.

We had many members holding responsible positions in both the student government and organizations. Some of them were Dorothy Byrd, Louise Ervin, Don Simpson, Birchel Griffin, and J. W.Sharpe.

This year was full of entertainments as well as hard work. There was our Junior-Senior Dance and the trip to Chapel Hill. Twenty people from our class were able to enjoy the Chapel Hill-V. P. I. football game and band concert. There were also several other "get-togethers" where we had lots of fun.

We had some members taking part in almost every school activity. The class as a whole (including the P. G.'s who were in our home room) also put over some splendid work in several small jobs around the school. A few of our classmates did some outstanding work in several contests the school entered, and we, the 11A's, stood among the highest in the school's scholastic rating.

We had a very pleasant school term and accomplished much. All too soon the time for us to leave has come, but we leave with one thought in mind:

"And when honor, fame, and fortune
In our path-way lie
Back our hearts shall turn to praise you
As the years roll by."

-and the South Blue Bantam gazes in awe at the Junior-Senior

SOUTH HIGH JUNE CLASS HISTORY

Mary Frances Wyatt, Historian

It was September 1935 that we, the class of June 1939, came to South High to begin a new page in our educational career. As freshmen, we were scattered about in twenty-one different home rooms with ninth and tenth graders. The surroundings were so different that we almost wished we were back at our old schools. The years that lay ahead of us till our graduation loomed far in the distant future.

When upperclassmen began to notice us, it gave us a thrill that lasted. Progressively we came to look on the Freshman report card to find that algebra and civics would permit us to consider ourselves Sophomores.

Now, in our second year, we began to feel our importance (which was much to feel) in the organization. We were represented in most of the departments and began to feel that this, a part of the student organization, was the place where we belonged.

An astonishing change had been made when we became Juniors, since we were neither childish freshmen nor foolish sophomores. The class was organized in the second semester with Raymond Wood as president; Jack Brown, vice-president; Evelyn Shaver, secretary; and Virginia Darnelle, treasurer; with Mrs. Lavenia Fuller Robinson and Mr. Tom Wetmore as sponsors. With an organized class we left behind our shyness and awkward ways to become leaders in the organization.

The most outstanding event of our Junior year was the Junior-Senior Dance given at the Country Club. We all have obvious memory of the fun that resulted from the hard work put into it.

The last page of high school days was turned when the title "dignified seniors," was bestowed upon us.

Again Raymond Wood was elected president, because of his leadership and service, to serve during our last year; Jack Brown was elected vice-president; Norma Allen, secretary; and Frances Elledge, treasurer. In the school election Ormel Walker was elected president of the student body and Evelyn Shaver, secretary.

Norma Allen was elected as D. A. R. member to compete with the other two high school representatives for city award.

Ormel Walker and Evelyn Shaver were elected as Mr. and Miss South High to represent the school on the division page of the BLACK AND GOLD.

The second semester many of our class members undertook important organization jobs. Two of our class became officers of the student body: Raymond Wood, president; and Evelyn Shaver, secretary.

Now that the last page has been turned, it is with regret that we leave our Alma Mater; but we rejoice that we have attained our goal.

'Tis May, the month of royalty-and romance-

SOUTH HIGH JANUARY CLASS PROPHECY

Miriam Peeler, Prophet

January 1940 New York

I had boarded a plane in Florida to return to New York to my work after designing another dress for Estelle Welch, the most popular model of the year.

During my trip, I met on board ship Doris Jacobs, who is the air hostess, and in the course of our conversation, our graduation at South High ten years ago came up. Naturally I asked if she knew what had happened to any of the people who graduated when we did. She said that after a long time—Marie Devine, Inez Ferris, and Mildred McGee were married. I also learned that the pilot of our plane was Billy Caffey, with Marguerite Walker as his assistant.

On my return to New York, I saw Eugene Hutchins starring at the "Capitol" theater with Annie Lee Sprinkle in "Paradise." While trying to keep from being stepped on after the show, I ran into Mr. & Mrs. Clifton Dunnagan (our Louise Ervin), the leaders of the social set in New York. She said that Monroe Caffey had a "swell" orchestra at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, and that Don Simpson had made himself a great name as a lawyer, and had as his secretary Arlinda Pardue.

On Park Avenue I bought a New York Times, and in big headlines was "Elizabeth Crews, Worlds Most Famous Tap Dancer, Returns From Hollywood."

On the professional page was Fostina Parsons picture. She was to sing with the Metropolitan opera chorus on Friday night.

The sports page held a big surprise. Bobby Clarke, the sports writer, had a grand write-up about the football team this year at Duke.

Robert Davis had won another wrestling match, and Clifton Jaro is now the Demon of the speedway.

In the mail I received a Winston-Salem Journal and a page of the paper had been given to the graduates of South High ten years ago. Erma Joyner, President of the P. T. A. at Forest Park School had made a talk to the present graduates of South High. Birchel Griffin had been made head nurse at the City Memorial Hospital, Ruby Hicks was the new owner of the Ideal, Dorothy Byrd is a teacher at South High, and Dorothy Leach is a well known hair dresser. Beulah Sink is librarian at South High. May Campbell is Dean of Women at Salem College, and Lawrence Williard is manager of the Winston-Salem Twins.

Just the other day I saw a new pose of Bernice Clodfelter on the front of the Good Housekeeping Magazine. She has gone in for posing in a big way.

J. W. Sharpe, President of the United States, is making a trip to Winston-Salem, and in his company is Ed Snider, the President's body guard. Elizabeth Williard has also gone in for politics. She eats, sleeps, and drinks them.

Last, but by no means least, we have our doctor. Ada Woods, famous skin specialist, is in Washington.

The mid-term class of South High has done and is doing what their school would expect of them, and we shall all keep trying to make a success of our lives in the years to come.

-and heartaches-as well as spring fever need doctoring!

SOUTH HIGH JUNE CLASS PROPHECY

Alfred Livengood, Prophet

Good afternoon. This is station T-I-M-E bringing you the annual South and Reynolds football classic. The weather is warm and a large crowd is here in Phillips Stadium to watch these two teams battle.

Today, November 8, 1949, we come to watch this event.

As teams have not taken the field, I'll look around and call attention to notables here

We notice the country's most famous woman lawyer, Frances Elledge, is here.

Jack Brown, that sensational stooge on Uber Stanford's Hotamales Hour, is giving us an act.

We see Evelyn Shaver, famous actress from Julian Wall's studio, surrounded by admirers. The chief of these is Ormel Walker, a Missouri Senator.

We notice some teachers together near the side lines. Wait and I'll see if I can identify them. Yes, there's Martha Gray Mickey, Marjorie Reavis, Alma Ray, Dorothy Holden, and Leake Masten. Leake is teaching English at Atkins High.

What a surprise! Mary Clodfelter, three times divorcee, has entered the stands. She has returned from Reno where she married Albert Waggoner, Texas Ranch owner.

Down in front are such notables as Raymond Wood, executive of the Catchy Safety Pin Company. Raymond is with Norma Allen, his secretary and chief yes-woman.

As you know, at any large gathering someone may faint or become ill. To combat this a number of nurses are here to handle any emergency. They include Virginia Peddycord, Margaret Simmons, Edna Harrold, and Bernice Sink.

Mildred Markland, that modern Annie Oakley, has entered on the "old gray mare"! There is multi-millionaire, Richard Hoover, a W. P. A. worker, in the guest box.

These aviators are in the croud: "Non Stop" Wall, "Solo" Taylor, and "Crash" Charles.

James Ashburn, cameraman from Keller Newsreel Studio, is preparing to take pictures of the game.

Coach Kenneth Jones of the Decker and Edman Institute of Insensibility is here to scout the game.

Howard Larrymore and Howard Haneline are selling Di-Dee dolls.

Across the stadium we hear an alumni band striking up a number, and we notice the ole swing maestro, Stanford Miller, is conducting. Band members are Jack Dease, Elizabeth Hayes, and Helen Sapp.

We see out in front several clowns from Catherine Brown's "Gone With The Wind" Circus.

Another distinguished guest is Aubrey Gray, mayor of that great city, Guthrie.

Cheerleaders Jane Conrad and Jane Clark, out in front, seem to be spry for their age.

To our right is Kenneth Linville, of the "$30 Every Saturday plan." He is with Bernice Sink of the National Board of Asylums and Harold Green of the Department of Fishstoryology.

Matthew Priddy is selling oinment for black eyes. Traveling salesmen here are William Cranford and Allan Cude. William is selling the Brooklyn Bridge and Allan the Sahara Desert.

This game will be followed by a talk by Bobby Rominger, of the Bored of Education who will talk of "Homework, It's Cause and It's Prevention."

From the festival of music-and the festivities of Thanksgiving-

SOUTH HIGH JANUARY CLASS WILL

We the January Class of nineteen hundred and thirty-nine of South High School, being of good health and sound mind, do hereby wish to publish and declare to all whom it may concern, this twenty-sixth of January, 1939 the following:

Article I

Section 1: To Mr. Phillips, our principal, we offer our sincere appreciation for his cooperation in making our years here successful ones, and we will him the incoming seniors, hoping they will do a better job than we have.

Section II: To Mr. Bunn and Mrs. Blackmore we leave our empty seats, tardies, and grade books which we hope they will find much enjoyment in refilling.

Section III: To the faculty, we wish to extend our appreciation for the instructions which they have so willingly tried to give us.

Article II

Section I: To Margaret Teague, Fostena Parsons leaves her slimness. Now she won't have to diet anymore.

Section II: To Frances Vestal, Annie Lee Sprinkle leaves her good looks. I wonder why?

Section III: To Rebekah Alspaugh, Buelah Sink wills her talent as "Big Apple Dancer," hoping she will follow in her footsteps, provided Rebekah can keep up with her.

Section IV: To P. M. Lindsay and Campbell Hunter, Bill and Monroe Caffey leave their motto: "pulling together."

Section V: To Rachel Vickers, Dorothy Leach leaves her short "bob."

Section VI: Miriam Peeler willingly leaves to Catherine Brown her ability of always saying the wrong thing at the wrong time.

Section VII: To Harry Leazer, Birchel Griffin leaves her height. With this added height Harry will not always be getting lost in a crowd.

Section VIII: To Virginia Sprinkle, Doris Jacobs timidly leaves her rolling eyes.

Section IX: To James Hill, Don Simpson leaves his very rude waves, hoping Jim can control them better than he has.

Section X: Erma Joyner and Mildred McGee leaves their "sisterly-love" to Magilene Stewart and Frances Watkins.

Section XI: To George Crotts, Clifton Jaro wills that bad habit of "flirting."

Section XII: J. W. Sharp anxiously leaves his talking ability to Ormel Walker. We sincerely hope this will help Ormel overcome his stage fright.

Section XIII: The Seniors, as a whole, leave to Harry Bowman and Tom Shore their left over units. It seems they will never get out any other way.

Section XIV: Robert Davis wishes Jack Brown to have his technique with the girls, because Jack is so timid and shy.

Section XV: Ada Woods, Elizabeth Williard and Marie Devine leave their blushing to all little timid girls at South.

Section XVI: Inez Ferris and Dorothy Byrd leave their "A" averages to Belvin Jackson.

Section XVII: Eugene Hutchins and Ed. Snider leave their acting ability to the Dramatic Club. I'm sure they can't find anyone to take their place!

Section XVIII: Elizabeth Crews leaves her dancing ability to Mary Frances Wyatt.

We, the Seniors, do hereby wish to make known and close this Last Will and Testment on this 26th day of January.

SOUTH HIGH JUNE CLASS WILL

We, the members of the June, 1939 graduating class of South High School, do hereby will and bequeath the following items as our last will and testament.

Article I

Section I: To Mr. Phillips and members of the faculty, we bestow our appreciation for their patience in dealing with us.

SOUTH HIGH JANUARY CLASS POEM

Marguerite Walker, Poet

Through the semesters we have grown To love, to cherish, and to praise The lasting spirit that's been shown Throughout our high school days.

Work and play, joy and pain We've struggled through these years. We've failed, we've conquered, tried again Through laughter and through tears.

Here we've found first love And acted like a fool. We've watched the golden moon above And broken many a rule.

Now we awake from our illusions. The future lies ahead, And we must make decisions Of ways that we shall tread.

Our grade will be both long and steep But we shall work and climb and fight Until the world lies at our feet. Then, we'll work to hold that height.

SOUTH HIGH JUNE CLASS POEM

Chole McGill Yokley, Poet

We studied for hours with torn-up hair, With spectacles perched on our nose And frowned and worked and worked and frowned For Graduation Day, we suppose.

We lift our voices and shout aloud, To you, the Gold and Blue, And all this, my friend, is done, For the Guiding Star so true.

Triumphant and victorious, Have been our high school days, And the spirit that we found at South Shall be with us always.

How often in these joyous days, Beneath the hazy sky We studied and played joyously, And watched the trains pass by.

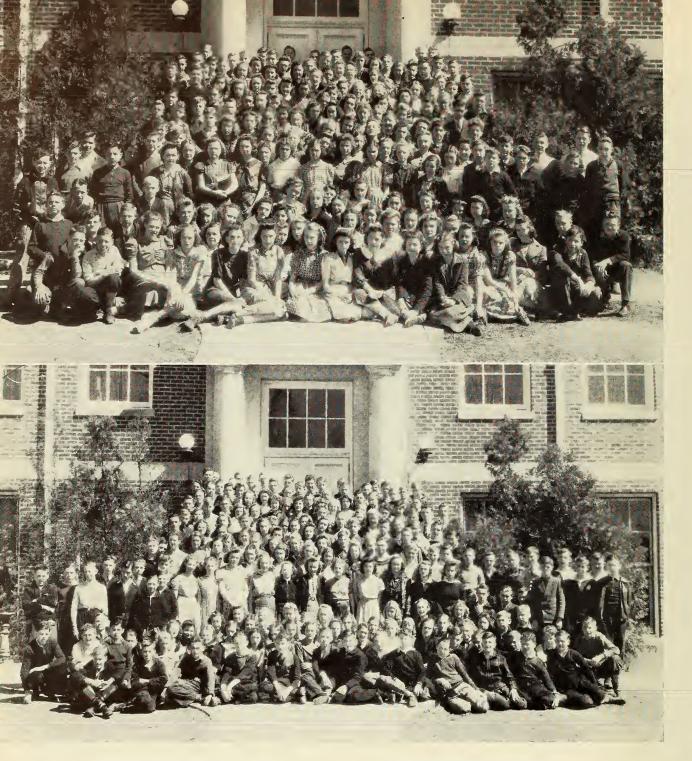

Is this only memories of the past, Or is it really true? Are we leaving South High forever, To never again pass through?

FRESHMAN CLASS

No longer the woman who lives in the shoe
Finds that her children have nothing to do.
Where she once gave them broth, she now gives them balls,
And the saxaphone's wail drowns their infantine squalls;
For music, athletics, and writing, you see,
Are part of South's plan for their activity.

Activites

They Saw Us Through —

To say that these leaders saw us through is no misstatement of fact, and South is glad for this opportunity to acknowledge their fine leadership. Their task has not always been an easy one. There have been tough spots aplenty and situations that called for dependable direction and uncompromising standards of conduct and community service.

They jumped their first high hurdle when the student body, by popular vote, said to them, "We believe in you so thoroughly that we are willing to follow your leadership." But ahead of them was a still more difficult one, that of delivering the goods; for winning the respect of the crowd is one thing and holding that respect day in and day out until the job is finished is another. In this they have not failed us but have seen us through in such fine style that this school is a better place because they came our way and were willing to give their time and talent in sincere service to South.

Our hats are off to these fine leaders: Ormel Walker, president of the school, 1938; Evelyn Shaver, secretary, 1938 and 1939; Raymond Wood, president, 1939; Troy Watts, vice-president, 1939; Joe Bill Noell, assistant-secretary, 1939; Franklin Perryman, assistant-secretary, 1938; and Elisabeth Clay, vice-president, 1938.

SUPERINTENDENTS—Monday morning in 207—"Mr President"— weekly bulletin—"Please discuss this."—Evelyn taking notes on the meeting—people carrying in chairs—Miss Hall—Hats off—schedule for the week—our most indispensible group.

LIBRARY STAFF—The library council and pages watched over students who sat reading to gain more knowledge—charged out books for them—collected fines for overdue books—kept good order—decorated bulletin boards—set rules and regulations and, to celebrate, had a party at the Sally Southern.

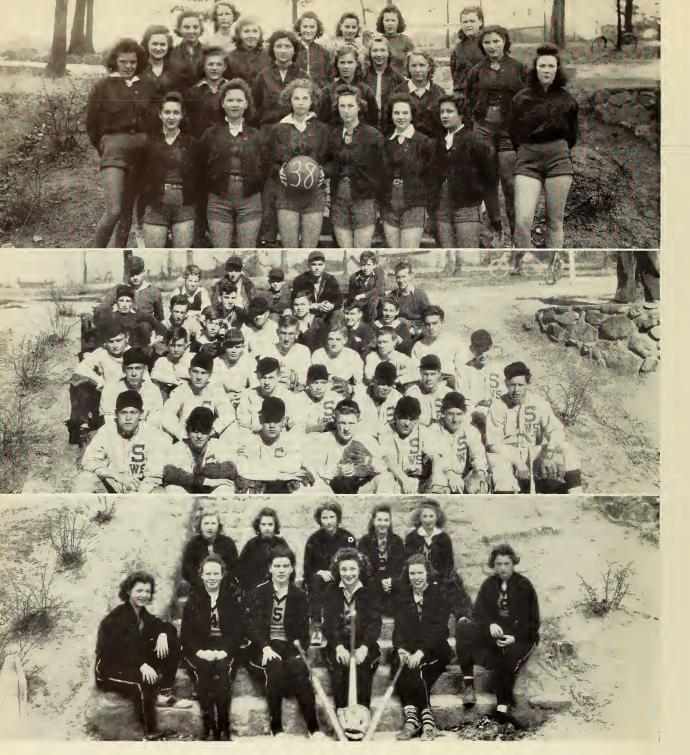

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY—The National Honor Society promotes high ideal of character, scholarship, leadership, and service—holds two assemblies for induction of new members each year—This year they supped at the Boar and Castle—went to conventions—ushered at assemblies.

ORCHESTRA—Give me "a"—broken baton—Quiet—We're on the air—Rosin—broken strings—a new sound-proof music room! We'll do even better next year.

CHORUS—Soft harmonious sounds drift to the ears of students in class rooms—as the chorus members strive for beautiful harmony in their daily practice—The mounting interest and appreciation of good music has increased the number of South's chorus.

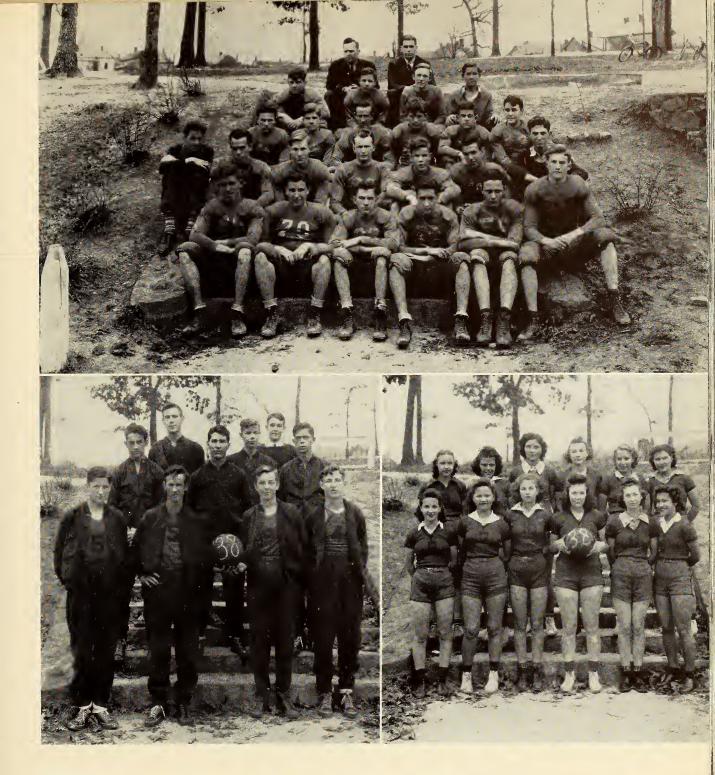

BAND—Patriotic renditions of "Standing Over Midst The Forest" at all the ball games—loud horns and bright blue and gold uniforms—a strutting drum major—broadcasts over WSJS every other week—parades on the field—night concerts—overtures by Noble Cain.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL—Calls from sidelines—thrills, chills, and yells—foul again, two free shots—Watch her; she's good—There's the whistle for the third quarter—tie!—extra period!—victory!

BOYS' BASEBALL—Thrills and spills—peppy cheers urging then on to victory—Wh-i-z! a ball over the fence for a homer—roars of cries from the spectators—peanuts and popcorn lending to the gaiety—band striking up the "Alma Mater"—another victory for dear old South!

GIRLS' BASEBALL—Strike three—you're out!—defeat—shut outs—victory—home runs—singles—doubles—triples—packed grandstands—seventh inning stretches—fouls—flies—bases filled—ball three, strike two.

FOOTBALL—A cold November wind—cries of "We want a touchdown" coming from the fans—husky players running down the field for a goal—three downs and ten to go—cheerleaders urging their team to victory—dedication of new stadium.

BOYS BASKETBALL—Shoot a goal—guard him don't let him get away—two free shots—Please let me go in, Mr. Smith—Clear the court, boys—keep him covered, you guards—He's dangerous—Snoot the ball over here.

SOCCER—Tumbles and fumbles—a gay riot of color—girls bobbing here and there—one with a sprained ankle, another with a kicked shin—bang! two more points—cheerleaders with their peppy yells—actioin—speed—a new victory for South.

DEBATERS—After hours of practicing long speeches—lingering over the pronunciation of hard words—dictating to typists—both teams won by a unanimous vote at Lexington and Spencer—giving them the honor of entering the tournament at Chapel Hill on April 13!

QUILL AND SCROLL—International Honorary Society for High School Journalists, strives to mantain high standards of writing and creative endeavor—holds initiation in March—takes members from upper third of class, who have done good work on annual or newspaper—helps raise rating of "Pine Whispers" and "Black and Gold."

CHEERLEADERS—Fifteen rahs for team—loud voices—blue and gold costumes—eager, peppy fans—long hours of practice—pleasing personalities—winning smiles and cheerful commands.

Reynolds High School

Haunting memories of the scene of carefree days silhouetted against the stately auditorium. Reynolds High School—where students study and play in the warmth of her sunshine and rest in the inviting coolness of her shade—calls us back again.

WE Can Do No LESS

Always on the job—always ready to help students with some new project or with one of those chemistry experiments, "Mr. Buch" has come to be respected and admired by all who know him, both in the class room and in the Ushers and Metric Science clubs.

To $Mr.\ W.\ S.\ Buchanan\ we\ can\ do\ no\ less\ than\ dedicate$ this annual.

Problem Solver

An adviser to the teachers and the students, Claude R. Joyner has directed the school activities in R. J. Reynolds High School for six years. As principal he always takes an interest in the problems of the students, attempting to fulfill their requests and desires in the light of their own needs. He is at present vice-president of the City AA1 High School Principals and serves as a director of the North Carolina Board of Education.

"Every cloud has its silver lining," and these members of the History department must nave found the bright side of the European situation. Miss Mollye Wilcox is "proving her point" to Misses Janie Weaver, Irene Jones, and Mary Snipes.

Shadows on the wall are left to right J. C. Bunn, Miss Rebecca Kerr, and Joby Hawn. Mr. Bunn seems uncertain about the math he is teaching next period, while Miss Kerr calmly faces another session of English and Coach Hawn's mind wanders to civics.

These bookish looking people are members of the English department who have gathered in the Library to discuss mutual problems in teaching literature. They are (seated left to right) Miss Mary Wiley, head of the English department; Miss Hazel Stephenson, Miss Lucille Edwards, Miss Ruth Troutman, Miss Elizabeth Kapp, Miss Emma Kapp, and Miss Mae Kreeger.

The lady punching the alligator in the ribs is none other than Miss Kathryn Emmart, who proves her bravery to Miss Flossie Martin, Joseph T. Pfohl, and Marvin Ward of the Science department.

Taking a few minutes off from proving that x equals the unknown quantity are Miss Sarah Olive Smith, head of the Mathematics department, and Mrs. Katherine Reich. Standing are James L. Barnhardt, K. M. Peters, M. S. Rose, and W. F. Blackmore.

A very "understanding" group in the foreign languages—seated Miss Annie Preston Heilig, head of Language department, and Miss Mary Martin; standing Misses Fay Martin, Pauline Whitley, and Ethel Ervin. In the Language department, Latin French, and Spanish are taught.

In a natural surrounding are some of the members of the Commercial department. Posed at their typewriters are Miss Ruth Ford and Mrs. Garnett K. Williams. Looking on are Misses Mary Huggins, Donnye Worley, Mary Howell, and Margaret Abbitt.

Four coaches and not a team in signt—W. F. Shealy, basketball coach; Walker Barnette, tennis coach; B. B. Redmond, track and football coach; and C. D. Smith, head football coach.

The backbone of the publications—Mrs. Mary Sterling Swain and L. W. Crowell. The former supervises the literary work of the Pine Whispers and Black and Gold along with her duties as an English teacher. The latter is in complete charge of the advertising side of this work in addition to his teaching in the math department.

The maker of homemakers—Miss Ardena Morgan. She not only oversees the making of garments, but also teaches home nursing, interior decoration, and child care.

Dietitian for 16 years—Miss Rosa Tinder. Her wise planning and capable supervision of the meals has added greatly to the rating of the cafeteria.

Librarian Knights—Misses Elizabeth Flynn and Ola Maye Nicholson. They rescue students from unknowns of the library by their ever-ready suggestions and helpful assistance.

Directors of Dramas—Mrs. Marjorie Stephenson and Miss Elizabeth Brookes. As coach and business manager of the Reynolds Hi Players, respectively, both are well known for their aid in the production of various plays throughout the year.

Miss Virginia Buckles, a new addition to the Reynolds faculty, trains the future prima donnas of the Metropolitan when she isn't teaching English.

Looking as if he were in a "brown study," Hatcher P. Story looks over the possibilities of his public speaking students as debators. He is the coach and inspiration of the debators.

Frederick Elrick is the man whose capable leadership in the printshop has brought its rating up to that of one of the best in North Carolina.

E. H. Stinson is shown putting to practice his subject, mechanical drawing. The designs and draping of the decorations for the last two Junior-Seniors were under his supervision.

The versatile coach for girls athletics is Miss Dorothy Knott. She is also a civics and history instructor.

Do you know him? He teaches wood work in the little green house in the front of the school. It's Millard Jackson.

In her natural surroundings Miss Ruth Helmich whips up a "Helmich special." She not only teaches girls cooking fundamentals but also all steps necessary to become a model housewife.

Mrs. Elizabeth Blakemore, specializes in introductory high school work and is shown above displaying the bulletin board work.

Slaving over her books which is necessary for the bookkeeper of all school projects, Miss Bess Ivey, also commercial teacher, does not even take time to smile at the cameraman.

To the right is Miss Anna Lula Dobson, dean of girls, head of commercial department, and manager of supply room.

Fortified by books of all shapes and descriptions pertaining to government or vocations, Miss Gladys Moore works with a will. She teaches history and sociology, and is vocational guidance director.

Miss Doris Voss, known to students as "Doris" is Mr. Joyner's private secretary. "When you're good, she's very, very nice, but when you're bad, she's horrid."

REYNOLDS HIGH SENIOR POEMS

METAMORPHOSIS

Evelyn Bolling, January Class Poet

We stand at the turning point of life
And slowly turn our heads;
We view the past with wistful eyes, and
Wonder where the years have fled.

Four pages have been filled With mingled joy and grief; Four years that were so long, But now they seem so brief.

Four gay and carefree years had we Without a thought of future days; We gayly tripped down life's pathway Caring naught for blame or praise.

One chapter of our lives is closed,

To us these years have deeper meaning;

We wonder how others can be gay and free,

When a future world on us is leaning.

We view the coming years with eager eyes, And long to see the future unfold; But though we are denied the eyes of seers, We are blessed with visions manifold.

For we have youth and faith and hope,
And we are equipped to fight the foe.
Our privilege is to choose the road
That will lead to riches or fame or woe.

As we go on to other chapters in our life, We pray that God will guide our faltering step, And make our life clean-lived, well spent, Climbing heights unattainable without His help.

So when our final chapter is closed, And we go upward to our goal; We pause to tribute to our Helper, And ask His blessings upon our soul.

THE WHISPERING PINES

Marjorie Patterson, June Class Poet

Pine cones, clustered, rustic, Nature's finest art Pine trees' woodsy fragrance Lifts the heavy heart— Pine trees, straight and slender, Bending in the wind; Pine groves make a haven For the weary mind.

Pine boughs, graceful, arching, Form a temple dome
Pine woods, sighing sadly
Turn our thoughts to home—
Pine needles, tiny spears
Glisten in the rain;
Pine trees whisper softly,
Call us back again.

Pine trees mark thee, Reynolds, Seem a part of thee— Pine trees, when we wander, Send us back to thee.

Borrowed finery-Eight-thirty landmark.

REYNOLDS HIGH JANUARY CLASS HISTORY

Mary Frances Barnes, Historian

Our Senior Class had its beginning in February, 1935, when, as a small group of blank-expressioned boys and girls, we arrived at the Richard J. Reynolds High School. Here, in spite of the strict rules and regulations which we had heard about, we hoped to attain what is desired by everyone in the walk of life, an education.

We, as did the freshmen prior to us, occupied the peanut gallery in chapel, and also were often reminded by the upperclassmen of our radiator fee. Thus, our freshman year, composed of the usual bumps and knocks, passed slowly but surely under the competent supervision of our homeroom teacher, Miss Ruth Troutman.

With the beginning of our sophomore year, we began to realize that the road was difficult to trod, and that earnest effort was our greatest need for continuous advancement. With this thought in mind, we began to express ourselves without hesitation and our bewildered countenances took on new expressions.

Our junior year found us becoming more and more essential to the school. Our earnest and capable officers and our sincere determination to win, helped us to pass, with few difficulties, this part of our school career. Also during this period, our attendance at the junior-senior dance and numerous other parties and banquets, increased our social life in the school.

When we eventually reached this, our senior year, we boasted of our privileges, but the question of where they are is yet to be settled. With Carr Smith and Paul Davis as our presidents, John Harrington, our vice-president, Dick Maynor, secretary, and Martha Fant, our treasurer, we have managed to come to the time of our graduation, along with the aid of our capable sponsor, Miss Annie Preston Heilig.

Thus, with a heavy heart and minds brimful of knowledge, we bid farewell to our Alma Mater and prepare to fill our places in the world of tomorrow.

REYNOLDS HIGH JANUARY CLASS PROPHECY

Charles White, Prophet

The persons who made it possible for me to transcribe this class prophecy of the January graduating seniors, 1939, were two very efficient instructors in our science department. Working in collaboration, they were able to produce an intricately ingenious machine, which, for the want of a better name, they called the "Futureoscope."

The machine was assembled at our last class meeting and each student was given the privilege of a glimpse into futurity. Some declined, however, this unusual chance to look beyond the calendar.

The students, after seeing that no bodily harm was to be inflicted by the machine, dedicated their time, and in quick succession saw their future unfolded before their eyes.

Mary Frances Barnes, placing her hands on a ball of sensitive metal, became visible on a translucent screen. She beheld herself jubilantly "beating around the mulberry bush" as she left the White House. It seems that she had just received a substantial increase in salary as secretary to the President.

Dick Maynor next stepped to the machine, and as he touched the delicate mechanism, he saw himself appearing on Broadway with amazing success in the theatrical production "The Invisible Man", by H. G. Wells.

Martha Fant saw that several years hence she was to be an author. Her most inspired work, "How To Smile At Men and Get Away With It", was then being edited.

It was revealed to Phyllis Pinkston that in the summer of 1960, she would sail to Europe to make an unrestricted study of her hobby, counting the bumps on the heads of various inmates in the English bug-houses.

Paul Davis found he was to employ his skill at the WSJS Radio Television Station, announcing the Saturday Morning Kiddie Show, the realization of an ambition sacred to him.

Irene Canada, better known as "Betting Irene," could be found at most of the well known race.tracks. She claimed the notoriety of being the world's worst picker.

According to the "Futrueoscope", Thomas Boyles had the strangest profession yet known. He controlled the size of holes in doughnuts. If the holes were too large, doughnut stock dropped rapidly; if too small, it was certain that the weight of his pay envelope would decidely diminish.

On the screen of this remarkable invention it was shown that in 1960, Charles Holder was in demand everywhere as an orchestra leader. He was paid weekly according to the enthusiasm of his fans.

Jean Bowles and Olga Cox had incorporated their efforts in the research work of feminine dietetics.

The Cash and Cook Haberdashery Shop, a partnership of Charles Cash and Reginald Cook, was unique in the fact that it could supply anything in masculine attire—even a brassless collar button. These boys were married and didn't have a care in the world.

Lillian Allred and Lottie Chitty were preparing their rocket ship for another dash around the world in an attempt to better their previous time of three days and fourteen minutes.

John Fry was pursuing happiness on the ocean floor looking for gold lost by sunken ships. John had many prospects for a life-time partner, but he had bided his time and remained a satisfied bachelor.

John Harrington and John Spainhour had become dictators of two very peaceful little countries in the (Continued to page 145)

REYNOLDS HIGH JANUARY CLASS WILL

As we, the class of January, 1939, are graduating in the midst of "after Christmas bustle" and have still that spirit of generosity that always accompanies this cheerful season, we feel it to be a fitting time to bequeath some prosperity to the new year.

We do hereby accept our sheepskins, and in return bestow in this, our last will and testament, all the indisputable qualities and possessions which we have so gracefully acquired at good old R. J. R.

Article I

Section I: We leave to Reynolds High School, the fame, the power and the honors that we shall accumulate in the years to come, "add to her fame and power" forever.

Section II: To the throngs of weary classmates that we leave behind, lost in the wilderness of Macbeth, we grant our sincerest sympathies.

Section III: To those few swimmers in the student body who can't even stay afloat, we leave a life boat which is anchored just outside the publications office.

Section IV: To our teachers we humbly give thanks, and to our principal, Mr. Joyner, we bequeath sincerest gratitude.

Section V: To Miss Doris Voss and the girls in the office we voice a request for a special favor: turn the office clock back 10 minutes in order that our fellowmen may be on time.

Section VI: For the dietitian we pray that the new year will be bright with hungry stomachs and hearty appetites.

Section VII: To the librarians, Misses Flynn and Nicholson, we leave boundless appreciation for their patient aid in library work.

Article II

Section I: Dick Maynor, one of the supports of the gridiron, leaves his fighting spirits and tiger claws to any of those self-confident boys who "hope" to make the team.

Section II: Paul Davis, the shining star in a history class discussion, wishes to bestow the remainder of his timely talents on the square shoulders of George Barbee.

Section III: Petite Phyllis Pinkston modestly leaves to Edna Sprunt her characteristic little laugh.

Section IV: Martha Fant leaves the practice of her flirtations with Marie Kimball and her three associates, better known as the R. J. R. threesome. Mary Lou Blanton, Virginia Hutchinson, and Margaret Austin. Martha stresses the fact that her practice is quite large and she feels that it will take all four pairs of these inexperienced hands to handle it efficiently.

Section V: The versatile Evelyn Bolling has chosen as her successor Jackie Peddicord for her surpassing and unusual ability to make so many friends.

We do hereby appoint our principal and friend, Mr. C. R. Joyner, sole executor of this our last will and testament.

In Witness Whereof, we do set our hand and seal, this, the twenty-seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine.

REYNOLDS HIGH JUNE CLASS HISTORY

Marjorie Williams and Carlyle Mangum, Historians

As the hour for the final graduation exercises approaches, we who are seniors, realizing that our days in high school are about to be ended, begin to think over the many happy days we have spent during our four years at Reynolds. Memories of the crowded events return to our minds, and as we reminisce, it seems that it was only yesterday that we entered high school as freshmen.

Although our memory is quite vague as to many definite activities during our freshman year, how well we remember the first day when we misunderstood the room number and went all over the first floor hopelessly searching for room 101. That year Bill Soyars was our representative to the council, while Mary Louise Rhodes drew the attention of the student body to the freshman class by winning the Fire Prevention Essay Contest.

By our second year we began to think that we knew how to run the school. Bill East was chosen as the class president, with Carlyle Mangum as our council member. In the spring of our sophomore year, B. R. Browder won the Rotary cup for declamation.

As juniors we first showed our interest in the more important things of school life, and before long many of our group were gaining honorary recognition. For our class officers, we elected Bill Woodall president; Hunter McElrath, vice president; William Wommack, secretary; and Jacqueline Peddicord, treasurer—all of whom helped make our Junior-Senior that year a big success. Being juniors, we had three representatives to the student council: Sara Bowen, who was secretary; Bahnson Gray; and Bill East.

The spring term of our junior year brought many events. Moyer Hendrix became the proud owner of the state singles tennis championship; while Mildred Helderman won the declamation contest for girls the second time. B. R. Browder went to Chapel Hill with the debating team where they went as far as the semi-finals.

Looking back over our final year of high school, we are reluctant to talk of the days that will soon mean graduation for us. As seniors we added to the record we made in the past, both in scholarship and athletics. For officers we elected Moyer Hendrix, president; Kenneth Clay, vice-president; Thornton Rose, secretary; and William Wommack, treasurer. Our representation in the council was held by Carlyle Mangum, Bill Soyars, and Ted Borthwick; while Betty Yates was reelected for the fourth year to the House of Representatives where she is secretary. Leaders were not limited to these officers, but many others in sports, dramatics, publications, and clubs have helped to make our school life more enjoyable.

It seems all a dream now as we look back over it, but in a few days the reality of graduation will be upon us when we will no longer be members of the Richard J. Reynolds High School.

One foot in the groove-posed (not that the others weren't)-mascot's prize grin.

REYNOLDS HIGH JUNE CLASS WILL

We, the June class of 1939, do make, declare, and publish this, our Last Will and Testament.

Foremost in the list of our possessions which we will to our legal heirs are our privileges. To the up-and-coming juniors go our seats in chapel, our dignity, and the other privileges which are hereditary with the title of senior.

To those who have been instrumental in seeing that we carried out our daily work well—to the sponsors, Miss Ford and Miss Whitley; to the faculty; the principal, Mr. Joyner; and the office personnel we bequeath our undying gratitude for services rendered.

To a few individuals, the graduation of the class of '39 means the relinquishing of certain superlative qualities.

To his brother, Roger, Moyer Hendrix wills his allaround talents that Roger might be able to carry on the good name of Hendrix for at least another generation at Reynolds High School.

To Fulton "Flash" Ferree, Marjorie Williams leaves her invincible journalistic ability in order that Fulton may some day get over his shyness.

Sebia Midyette and Mary Lou Brown bequeath their power to lead the stronger sex around "by the coat tail" to June Batten and Frances Swing. Mildred Helderman, John Dunnagan, and W. P. Covington III bequeath their dramatic talent to any underclassmen who deem themselves worthy of gracing the stage of Reynolds Auditorium.

To Shirley Gosselin and Catherine Bacon, Margaret Austin and Virginia Hutcheson bequeath their Damon-Pythias friendship.

We, the June class, of 1939, now turn the job of running Reynolds High School back into the hands of Principal Joyner. For four years we have relieved him of the responsibility of his former job, but now realizing that there is no one who could ably succeed us, we place the job back in his capable hands.

And as our last bequest, we, the June class of 1939, realizing that for the most part our high school career has been a successful and interesting one, respectfully request that our epitaph read; "Here lies the June class of '39—they did their job well."

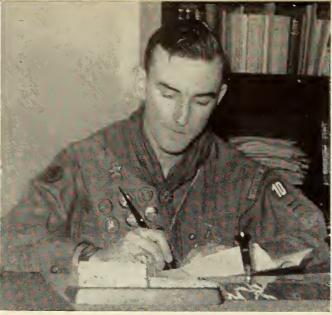

In Witness Whereof, we, the June Class of 1939, have set to this, our last will and testament, our seal, this sixth day of June, in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and thirty-nine.

REYNOLDS HIGH JUNE CLASS PROPHECY

Calder Womble and Henry Newsome, Prophets

Time-1955

Place—Main Street of the world's fourth largest city, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Characters—Calder Womble, L. L. D.

Henry Newsome, M. D.

Newsome—Well, if it isn't our Beau Brummel of the Senate, Calder Womble. How's the world treating you, master mind?

Womble—Just fine, Doc, how're your guinea pigs doing?

Newsome—Oh, they're o. k. I guess. What have you been doing these last few years? I haven't seen you since the 1945 Duke-Carolina game. Say, that was a game, wasn't it? Carolina would have done more than tie you though, if the game hadn't been called because the water boys, Bill Johntz of Duke and Bill Hill of Carolina, got into a fight over who was to take co-ed Mary Garvey to the five day Senior Hop in Raleigh.

Womble—Aw, you wouldn't have either. Carolina was lucky to get off with a tie.

Newsome—That's just your idea. Say, how did that breach of promise suit come out that Mae Martin—better know by her screen name May East—brought against play-boy Ted Brothwick?

brought against play-boy Ted Brothwick?
Womble—I defended poor Ted as well as any one could against such experienced witnesses as Helen Thomas, Morton Silverstein, and Juliana Hanks. Hugh Ratcliff, the plaintiff's counsel had a rather weak case, but Mae's personal charms made up for that and caused Judge Sam McCracken to give her $25,000.

Newsome—I don't doubt it. By the way, did you read the editorial in the New York Times in which Bill East blasted the recent presidential campaigns of Moyer Hendrix, communist, Jack Trotman, anti-prohibitionist, and Bill Wallace, the victorious Democratic nominee?

Womble—I certainly did. Say, what kind of a first lady of the land do you suppose the former Mary Lou Brown will make?—All of which reminds me that I saw her at a prize-fight the other night when Willard Beeson took the heavy-weight title from Buddy Powell, Jr. She was escorted by Frank Alspaugh, who recently made quite a hit in the "Sweetheart of Frankenstein", co-starring with Nan Davis who made her debut two years ago in "Nature's Best." Seated next to them were those chorus-boys Raymond Masten, Charlie Murray, Chauncey Cunningham, and Charlie Tucker.

Newsome—That sounds like old home week. I remember when all those now famous people were mere students back at Reynold's High. Have you heard what's become of any other of our old classmates?

Womble—I surely have. Rosa Lee Kirby has just announced her engagement to Mahatma Gandi's grandson. David Ashburn, by the way, has just joined the French Foreign Legion with Bill Seawell, who was just sworn into the Bachelor's Club by President Buddy Yates. Kenneth Clay has become sole owner of "Ye Olde Curb Service Shoppe" which covers a whole block in Chicago. Mary Louise Rousseau just made public her intention to devote the rest of her life in running a home for other spinsters disappointed in love. That's all I can think of except that someone told me that B. R. Browder has made good since he organized his band. Can't you think of someone else?

Newsome—Let me see! Several of them have gone back to carry on the work at dear old R. J. R. (Continued to page 151)

10A CLASS—These are the rising seniors—260 strong. As their leaders they have chosen Roger Hendrix, president; Sara Crowell, vice president; David Lewis, secretary; and Paul Denny, treasurer. The class sponsor is Miss Irene Jones. The most important social event of the year for the junior class is the traditional Junior-Senior, usually a dance. This year a dance was given in honor of the graduating class in the school gymnasium. Roger Hendrix as president of the class, was in charge of all committees. It is from the 10A class that the president and vice president of the school are elected for the coming year. The secretary of the school for this year was Mary Lucy Baynes, member of this class who is also managing editor of the Pine Whispers. The 10A council representatives are Joe Trollinger and Bill Lambeth. During this past year Henrie Harris won from the three high schools of this city in the oratorical contest sponsored by the American Legion. Also, Thad Tate won second prize in this city in the state-wide Highway Safety Contest sponsored by the State Highway Department. Annually, the senior marshalls, girls who usher at the graduation exercises, are chosen from the 10A class. This year those chosen were Mary Lucy Baynes, Algine Neely, Frances Swing, Jane Cannon, Lucille Fowler, Claire Martin, Nancy Nunn. Betty Lee Spainhour They are nominated and elected by the members of the senior class

REYNOLDS HIGH SCHOOL—What was once just a fond hope in the minds of R. H. Latham and the late Mrs. Katherine Smith Reynolds-Johnston has been transformed into a more than true realization today in the form of one of the South's greatest educational plants. It was just fifteen years ago last fall that the first complete school year was begun in the great building which serves as the main educational plant for the school today.

In 1919, first plans for the school which was to serve the growing city of Winston-Salem were made. The main academic building, composed of 68 rooms and located on the site of 28 acres, and the modern heating plant were the first buildings to be constructed.

While construction was going on, the Cherry Street High School burned on the night of January 9, 1923. After a three-day holiday, the students started to Reynolds High, which was still under construction.

The Reynolds auditorium was the gift of the late Mrs. Katherine Smith Reynolds-Johnston to the youth of Winston-Salem in memory of her husband, the late Richard J. Reynolds. In early 1924, the auditorium for the school was completed at a cost of $700,000. Seating 2,250, it was considered the finest auditorium in this section. Mrs. Reynolds personally supervised parts of the construction.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL—Is the most vital organization in Reynolds High School. It is the main governing body and takes an active part in backing all worthy extra—curricular projects of the school. The four officers of the council are also the officers of the entire school. They are elected annually in the spring to serve for the coming year. The president and vice-president are chosen from the rising senior class; secretary, from the rising junior class; and the treasurer, from the rising sophomore class. This year's officers are Bahnson Gray, president; Mary Louise Rousseau, vice-president; Mary Lucy Baynes, secretary; and Bob Warren, treasurer. Besides the officers there are ten council members, chosen according to class rank.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—The House of Representatives along with the Student Council, is the governing body of the school. This division is in charge of the misdemeanors around the school such as hall and campus regulations. It is responsible for placing hall monitors throughout the building whose duty it is to see that all students obey school rules. One representative is chosen from each homeroom annually or semi-annually as each class wishes. Officers are elected from the membership in the fall; however, if there is any change in personnel, in the spring also. Present officers are Frank Alspaugh, speaker; Mary Garvey, speaker pro tem; Betty Yates, secretary; Joe Smith, treasurer; and James Pfaff, executive member to the council.

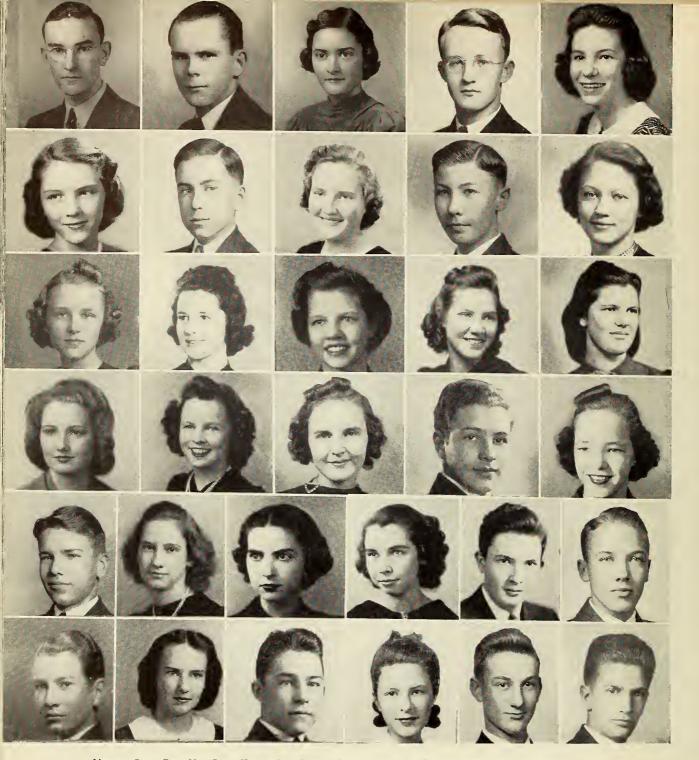

Browder, Llewellyn, Yates, Martin

DEBATERS—The bitter disappointment of defeats by both opponent teams in the triangle, then the exhileration of victory at Wake Forest. The affirmative team of B. R. Browder and Jane Llewellyn was judged the third best in the state, and the negative team of Buddy Yates and Watt Martin, second. Buddy and Watt were said to be among the ten best debaters of the state. Congratulations!

Taylor, Pres., East, Vice Pres., Williams, Sec., Rhodes, Treas., Mangum, Patterson, Baynes, Truluck, Krites, Harrison, Angelo.

QUILL AND SCROLL—Thirteen may be an unlucky number, but it's the lucky thirteen who make up the Odd Number Chapter of the Quill and Scroll. Limited to thirteen members, the society stresses scholarship and outstanding work in journalism. These students are mainly responsible for the publication of Pine Whispers and the Black and Gold. You can recognize them on their induction day by the trailing black robes with the red scarfs.

Mangum, Pres., East, Vice Pres., Taylor, Sec., Jewett, Treas., Minnis, Ch. Program Comm., Patterson, Johnson, Rankin, Martin, Williams. Mullen, Wall, Nunn, Rhodes, Bagnal, Brunt, Andrews, Kiger Levin, Johnson, Wommack, Bates, Gordon, Blackwell, Newsome, Berger, Gray, White, Stockton, Shamel, Smith, Speas.

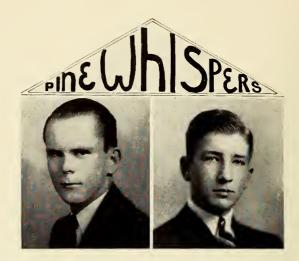

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY—Quiet music, lighted tapers, solemn black robes, hushed expectancy—an Honor Society induction. Sober students are brought to the stage and installed as members with these words: "I pledge myself . . . to make its ideals the ideals of my school." The ideals are scholarship, service, leadership, and character. Based upon these cardinal virtues, the Alpha Chapter of the National Honor Society tries to promote worthy activities in the school, encourage a respect for scholarship, and foster individual growth. Each year finds it branching out into more channels of usefulness and contributing more and more to the welfare of the school.

Borthwick, Ratcliff, Rose, McKenzie, Montague, Welfare, Powell, Clinard, Smith, Clay, Johnson, Flynt, Hendrix, Martin, Owens, Johntz, Browder, Tucker, Yates, Steele, Sauls, Dixson, Seawell, Browning, Lowery, Williamson Hill, Jewett, Giay.

SENIOR HI-Y CLUB—"32 strong." These are the boys whose club pins are seen on the sweaters of their best girl. Among their important annual activities are the hayride, dance, and election of sponsors. This club promotes closer fellowship among the boys of this high school.

The publications staff always trys to keep abreast of the times, so when recent trends toward streamlined make-up became evident, the style of Pine Whispers was changed. Following closely the modes of large dailies, the headlines of the publication were reduced and set flush at the left.

But work on Pine Whispers is not all work, for it has its pleasant side, too. The journalism students have good times together, and many lasting friendships are formed in the journalism room. Then there is always the Southern press convention at Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Virginia. In addition to practical instruction there is lots of fun packed into those four glorious days.

There are several reporters who deserve special recognition for their work during the past year. As usual, the girls out-number the boys. Here they are: Fay Chandler, Carolyn Nelson, Robert Lentz, Margaret Johnson, Jane Cannon, Robert Moore, and Musa Queensbury.

In the fall the staff started looking around for something new in annuals, for last year's was definitely out of date. They wanted it bigger and better—quantity plus quality—so that's the way they made the 1939 Black and Gold.

It wasn't as easy as that, though. First of all, a theme had to be decided upon and the book planned just as it was to be when finished. Next, styles of make-up had to be decided upon.

Then came the problem of snapshots. The book was supposed to be informal; therefore informal shots were needed. The "Bills" were pressed into service with their cameras and light meters and other paraphernalia which seemed necessary for pictures with a candid camera.

There were long consultations with Frederick Elrick, head of the print shop, to see whether the brainstorms of the staff were practical. April was set as the deadline, and the staff spent many hurried hours trying to meet the time limit.

You are now reading the 1939 Black and Gold. The entire staff sincerely hopes you like it!

BUSINESS STAFF—"As busy as bees"—the members of this staff hustle about town in pursuit of prospective advertisers. And, in case you didn't know, they help greatly in supporting the publications.

OFFICE PAGES—"At your beck and call"—the office "hounds" dog your trail with messages or dart in and out rooms making announcements. They are absolutely indispensible in the office, and school wouldn't be school without that old familiar phrase, "Wanted in the office."

USHERS CLUB—"Service with a smile."—They're the boys who seat you behind the lady with the umbrellistic hat. They do other things than "meet in the back of the auditorium." They usher at plays, concerts, and graduation exercises. Only seniors of a required average are eligible for the club..

OCCUPATIONS AND READERS DIGEST CLUBS—"With an eye to the future" the Occupations Club studies vocations from all walks of life and the Readers Digest Club digests the most interesting articles from all magazines.

METRIC SCIENCE CLUB—"A pound of feathers is heavier than a pound of gold"—at least that's what they tell us. Anyway, they experiment and study to find the more interesting and unusual facts of science. Membership is open only to exceptionally good science students in their junior or senior years.

COLLEGE CLUB—No, they're not working their way through college—the club is a group of senior girls, organized to study various colleges that interest them. During the last term they have considered new vocational fields for women.

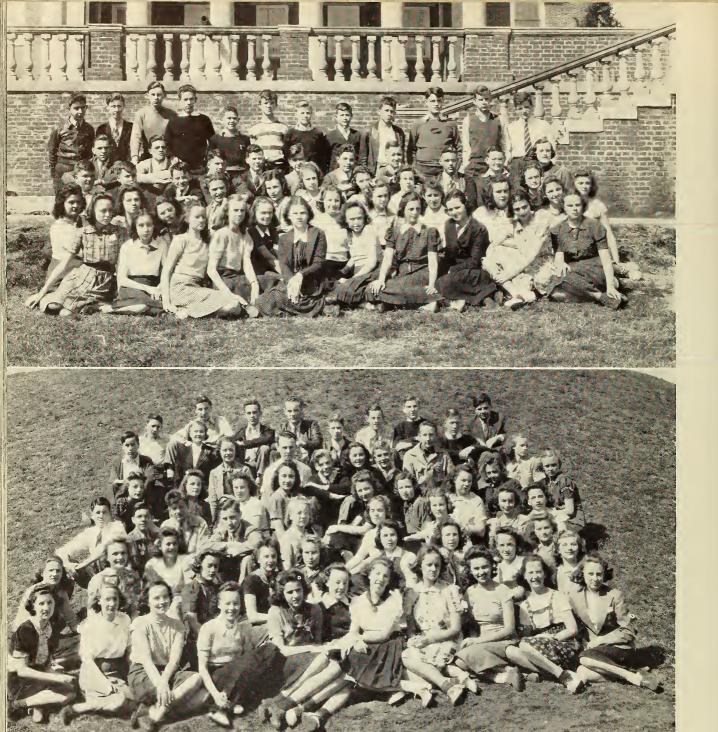

"A" BAND

The Band at Reynolds High is an important school activity. Members are promoted to the "A" band from the lower bands according to ability and industry. The band plays at chapel programs throughout the year, often renders civic services, and parades and exhibits letter formations at football games. During the past year they played at the Duke-Wake Forest game, the dedication of the new stadium, at the Carolina-V. P. I. game at Chapel Hill, and at the post-season game between Moravian and Appalachian State College here. They also played and marched in several parades in the city. Annually it enters the State Music Contest at Greensboro both in the group and individual divisions. Several members represented the Reynolds Band in the All-State Band, composed of the ablest members chosen from schools throughout the state. There are approximately 50 musicians in the "A" band. Every year the "A" band is seriously handicapped by the loss of senior members; however it continues to be one of the outstanding music organizations of the state. Joseph T. Pfohl is conductor.

ABBITT AND DOBSON ETIQUETTE CLUBS—The "do's" and "don't's" of etiquette are brought out in the programs presented in their club periods on Thursday mornings. These clubs are composed of freshmen and sophomore students.

REYNOLDS HI PLAYERS—"In this business of playmaking they make play out of work"—Among their accomplishments for this year were the presentation of "Skidding", a three-act play, in the fall and the sponsoring of Dramatic Night, three one-act plays presented by the three upper classes, in the spring. The over-whelming achievement of the season was the original play, "Shirt-Tail Boy", by W. P. Covington III, which was produced by the Reynolds Hi Players and won three first prizes in the state-wide Playwriting Contest and Drama Festival held at Chapel Hill.

LATIN AND FRENCH CLUBS—"Latin is a dead, dead language," but this club unearths the more unearthly habits of that much read-about race; but it would be a "faux pas" not to mention that the French Club has a lively time learning interesting facts about a modern language.

HOWELL AND SNIPES ETIQUETTE CLUBS—"It ain't whatcha do, it's the way howcha do it!"—The etiquette clubs teach the right thing to do at the right time in problems interesting to high school students.

LIBRARY STAFF—"They always get your book."—These library assistants are always ready, willing, and able to give any information or assistance needed. Membership is open only to those specially invited by the librarians.

TRAVEL AND STAMP CLUBS—"Around the world in forty minutes".—The would-be travelers satisfy the gipsy in their souls through speakers, pamphlets, and daydreams. Through its hobby the Stamp Club reaches the most secluded spots of the globe.

BROOKES ETIQUETTE AND HOME ECONOMICS CLUBS—Minding your "p's" and "q's" and minding the peas and beans are not very far removed for "etiquette begins at home." The Home Economics Club is open to honor students in this department.

O. HENRY AND CREATIVE WRITING CLUBS—"Some read writers and some write readers" in these sister groups. The O. Henry Club studies the works of "the master of surprise endings" while the Creative Writing Club strives to develop its own talents in all phases of the literary arts.

GIRL RESERVES—"Girls in white"—they wear white for purity with a touch of blue for knowledge. Following their slogan and purpose, "To face life squarely" and "To find and give the best," they back worthy school projects and start ones of their own.

PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB—"Watch the birdie!"—but sinse the candid camera craze has swept our school any candid camera-ite might be found hanging from the rafters or lurking behind lamp-posts to catch us at our worst. Thanks to this group for putting life and action into our annual. These portraits of the club members were taken by Bill Hill and Bill Wallace, who are Photography Editors for the Black and Gold.

BOOSTERS CLUB—"That we may boast, they boost"—Boosters are the backbone of our school spirit. They arouse our enthusiasm in all projects such as athletics, club activities, and school entertainments. In their weekly meetings the boosters discuss ways and means of improving the school in every way.

JUNIOR HI-Y—"Clean speech, clean habits, clean sports, and clean scholarship"—
It is through these means that the club strives "to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christain character." The main requirement for membership in the club is character. This division of the Hi-Y club is in its fourth year of existence.

FRESHMAN AND SOPHOMORE HI-Y CLUBS—The alphabet has the bold "u" and egotistical "i", but what does it have over Reynolds, for Reynolds has the "Hi-Y"! These boys compose a club which does much to uphold the ideals of the school.

VOICE CLASSES—"Sing, Sing" without stripes but with bars. The voice class makes no "bad notes" but is imprisoned in a love for music. This group has entertained the student body with several enjoyable chapel programs and the radio audience has had the apportunity to hear and appreciate their frequent musical broadcasts. For several years they have entered successfully the state music contest.

MONOGRAM CLUB—In mathematics it's the kilogram; in biology it's the diaphram; and in athletics it's the monogram! They're the boys that "bring home the bacon" on the athletic field. The monogram represents outstanding work on sports.

High School Print Shop

The publication of this book marks another step in the path of progress of the "Black and Golds" through the years that they have commemorated the work and play and aspirations of Winston-Salem High School students.

Not only is this annual—the eighth to be completely set and printed by the High School Print Shop—the largest yet produced, but it is different. The format and display of the pages is in a different mood and a different mode. It has gone modern. The contents of the book likewise follow this new course. The extent and character of the informal pictures is one of the most noticeable and commendable changes the book has seen in years.

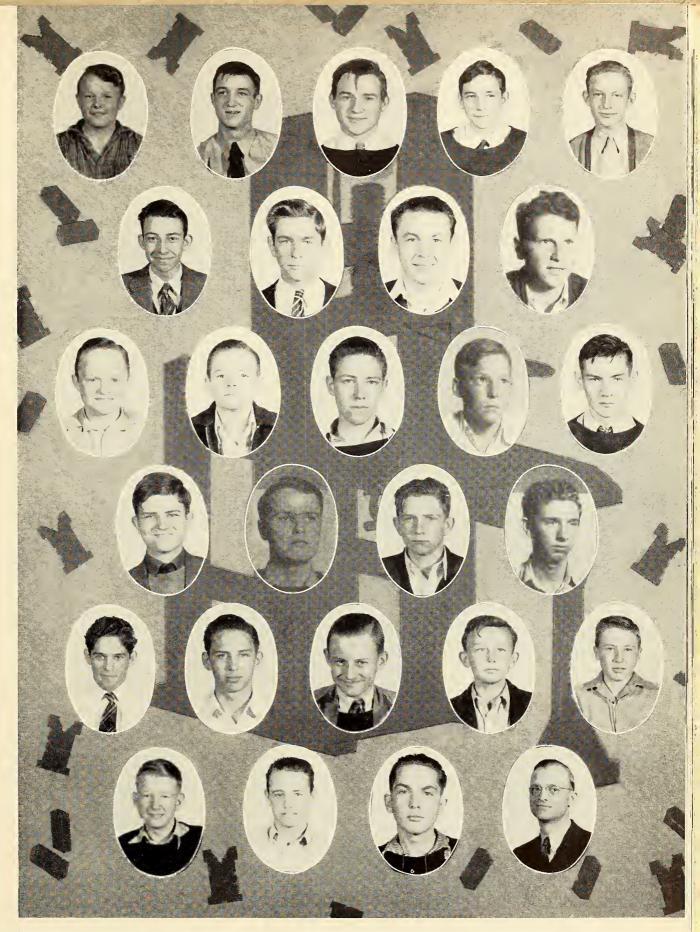

But new ideas present new problems, and the new larger pages and bled-edge cuts involved increasing difficulties and much more particular work than ever before. How well or how poorly we have succeeded in this, we will let everyone judge for himself from his copy of the book.

We are sure of this—that the mechanical production of the book would have been a much greater task, and much less successful, had it not been for a high degree of cordial and interested cooperation on the part of the various journalism and business staffs and the photo-engravers.

Every student in printing had his job to perform in one or more of the many operations necessary to the production of each of the 2100 books. Eugene Blue was responsible for most of the page make-up and a good part of the Linotype composition and press feeding. Bill Cranfill and J. R. Gentry also did considerable machine composition. Lee Ernst, Delmont Cranfill, Talmage Davis, and Charles Gibson set many of the ads, and helped with much of the bindery work. Harry Whitaker, Richard Johnston, and Ben Hunter worked on press as well as at folding and other work. All those students not specifically mentioned are to be commended for their faithful work hour after hour and day after day.

Mr. Arnold McCall of the Winston Printing Co. was secured for the cylinder press makeready only. All other operations were performed by students and instructor.

THURSDAY MORNING MUSIC CLUB—"Music casts a magic spell" over Reynolds High students, and the Thursday Music Club proves it since it is the largest club in the school, having approximately 250 members. The club, sponsored by Miss Virginia Buckles, has as its usual program the "community sing" idea. Sometimes the more talented members participate individually. Often, too, they discuss current events in the music world, especially local events. The club was first organized in the fall of this year. Its popularity shows an increasing interest in a more extensive musical program.

Ole King Cole was a merry old soul
And a merry old soul was he;
'Cause he backed all the games
And cheered every goal
And he yelled and he clapped with glee.

Athletics

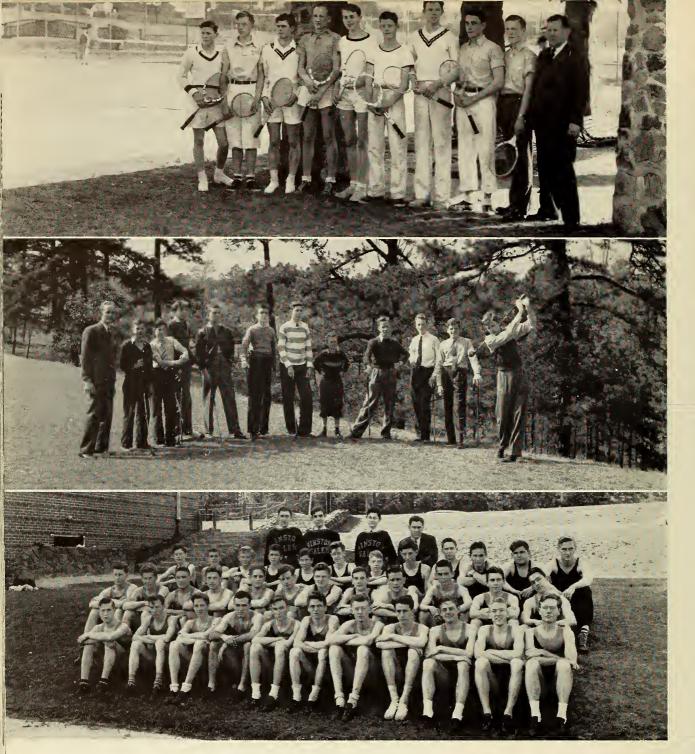

FOOTBALL—Brisk winds, peanuts, excitement, glamour! power play by Brewer, end sweeps by Barbee! And the line: all trumps with nine aces—Trivette, Page, Carr Smith, Maynor, Jake Freed, Keenan, Seawell, Thomas, Sherrill! Coaches Redmond, Smith, Shealy. Greensboro! All-state talk! 1938; remember?

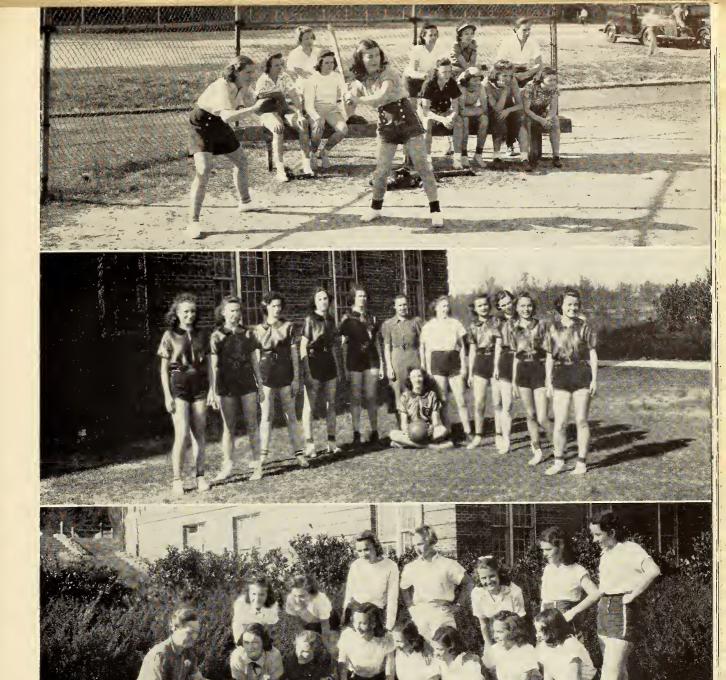

BASKETBALL—Recipe: Materials—Mangum, McManus, Sherrill, Cale, Haltiwanger, Coach Frank Shealy: gym floor with basketball and baskets. Run men briskly until well warmed, mix vigorously with opponents, and flavor with packed stands, yells, referees, whistles, and paddle pops. Result: thrills and chills.

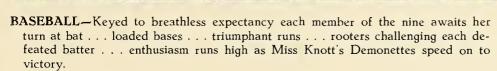

TENNIS—Summer breezes lazily rippling the hot sands of the court. . . soaring lobs by Haltiwanger, venomous cuts by Hendrix. Plopping tennis shoes evidence of men "on their toes," nonchalantly watched by the jovial Barnette . . . State Champs.

GOLF—Again, to fairways, greens, tees, sand traps, and woodlands go another Reynolds golf team, led by DeWitt Nunn, George Montague, Bahnson Gray, William McKenzie, and coached by Mr. Marvin Ward.

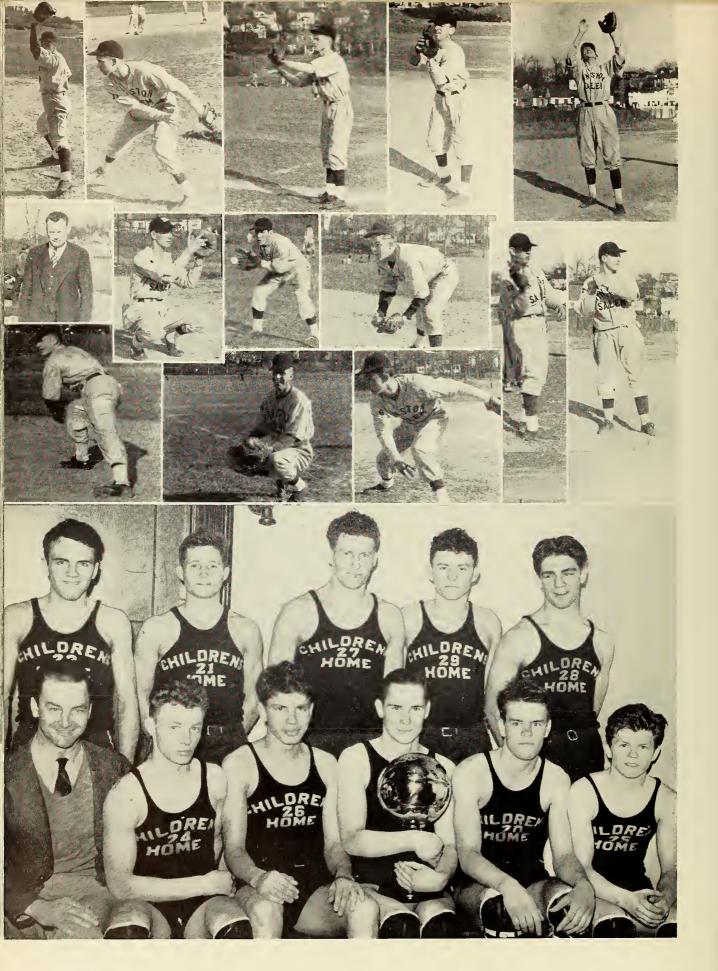

TRACK—Victory—the only thing good enough. From this standard come such names as Clower and Mangum, representing speed, skill, endurance—stamina! Studious hurdlers, challenging runners—all Coach Redmond's gang. Thus the Western Champs.

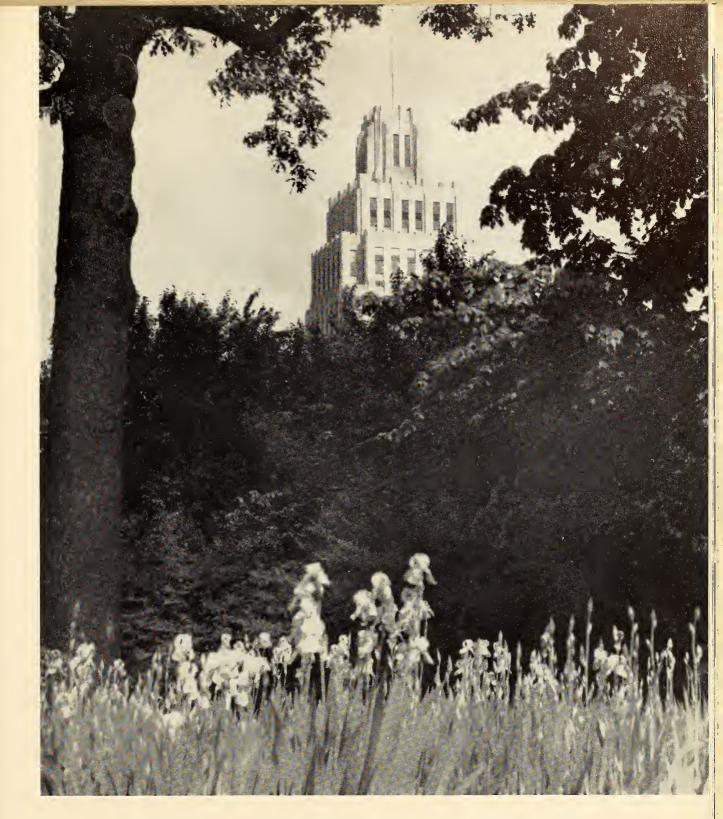

BASKETBALL—Weeks of practice . . . team cooperation . . . training rules . . . first game . . . passes sail down the court . . . precise shots drop into the basket . . . swiftness and dexterity characterize the Demonettes' games . . . expert forwarding . . . envious guarding . . . stiff competition . . . congratulations City Champions!

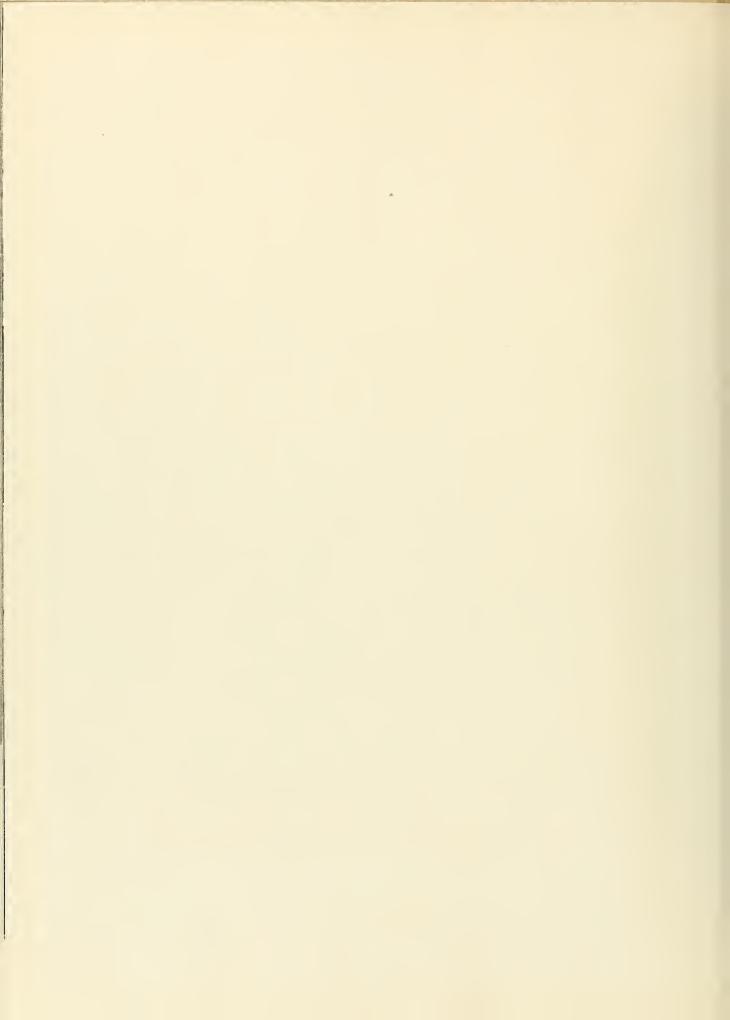

SOCCER—Rigid training plus rigorous competition . . . teamwork . . . forward lines up against forward . . . halfbacks and fullbacks spurring the team to victory . . . expert dribbling and passing . . . penalty, kicks . . . spirited participation and good sportsmanship throughout!

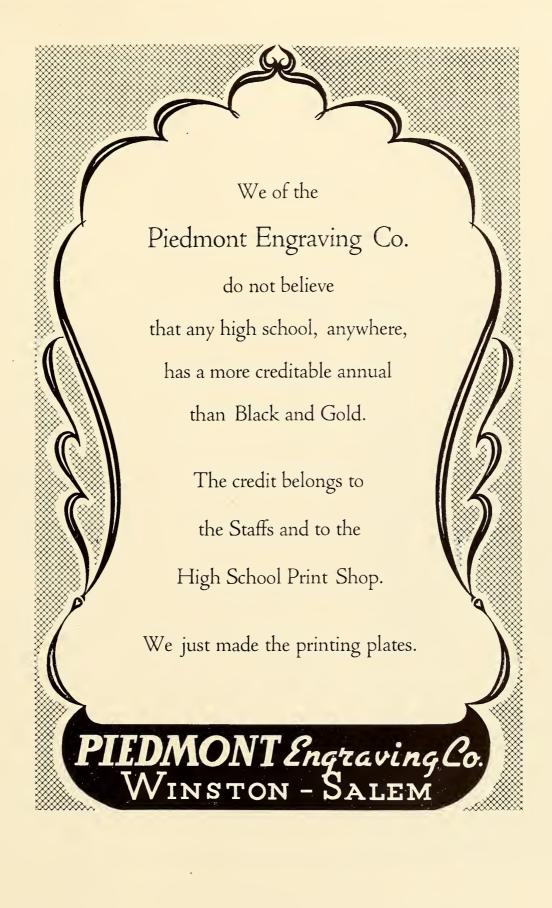

Deatures.

Soft lights and shadows—nature's loveliest gifts combine with man's creation of symmetrical architecture to make a picturesque conception of the ideal modern city. Great industries and the graceful lines of mighty oaks form a contrast, yet harmonize into a peaceful symphony of art.

THE NIGHT BEFORE EXAMS

Doris Poindexter, Hanes High 'Twas the night before exams, when all through each note Bill Jones was a stirring, to see what he wrote; The books were arranged with no thought of care, In hopes that a brainstorm soon would be there; The rest of the family went right off to bed, While visions of honors danced through Bill's head; He rubbed and dusted his old thinking cap. And roused his brain from a long winter's nap; What a late hour for such a big clatter-All in Bill's head is undeveloped matter. But it's hard to grasp knowledge all in a flash, So much of his work will go out with the trash. More rapid than eagles the questions they came, And he moaned and groaned as looked up a name; The time slipped away as wild hurricanes fly, He still tried to think as the stars left the sky, He looked like a wreck from his head to his foot-All scattered around him were stubs, ashes, and soot, He was grouchy and crossnot a jolly old elf-And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself. He got ready for school with a flirt and a jerk, He spake not a word, but went straight to his work He wrote down a little. then turned up his nose Gave a disgusted look, and up he arose. But I heard him exclaim, ere he went out of sight, "You can't grasp knowledge all in one night!"

Robert Frye has become the first man ever to teach Latin there, but he seems to be making a good job of it. Katherine Smith is head of the history department. Betty Yates is teaching freshmen the basic principles of good housekeeping, and Mike Mangum just left his job here as head track and basketball coach to accept a position with U. of Tennessee. Bettie Anne White has come back to her old Alma Mater as Student Adviser and sponsor of the National Honor Society, after having graduated from Vassar with Phi Beta Kappa honors.

Nancy McClung is head of the sanitary department of New York City. Did you hear about Henry Welfare being elected most intellectual educational worker in the South? What ever became of Virginia Hutchinson, Margaret Austin, Jane Llewellyn and some of the others?

Womble—Virginia and Margaret are models in New York and Jane is head reporter for the Society column of the "Times." Marjorie Rankin recently became president of "The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Dumb High School Students" and Ruth O'Neal was elected vice president. Fred Speas is the recently chosen "King of Swing" of the nation and Paul Johnson seems to be the best liked drummer. Lib Taylor and Marjorie Williams have just been engaged by the "Last Word" the famous woman's magazine, as special Chinese fashion commentators. Say, what time is it?

Newsome—Four-thirty, why?

Womble—I've got an appointment with Joe Smith, president of "Smith Pipe Products, Inc.", in about five minutes.

Newsome-Well, I surely am glad to have seen you again, Calder. Womble-What say you come out to the house for a six-thirty supper? I'm sure the wife won't mind. Maybe we can find out what some more of our friends are doing and plan a fishing trip or something. Newsome-All right, I will, and thanks a lot. I'll see you at 6:30 then.

Thousands of them and yet more, Fill the sky at night; Even when the moon shines forth, They twinkle just as bright.

Like some majestic city,
Astir with fairy light,
The sky seems filled with magic,
That enchants the sky at night.

But when it's time for dawn to come, And when the darkness fades, The stars slip out—far out of sight, And then the sun invades.

REMINDERS—By Reddy Kilowatt

The inventive genius of man has made it possible for me to perform all sorts of household tasks as well as industrial operations.

My job in the home a good many years ago was simply to furnish light—and it was glaring, un-diffused light at that. Today I do all sorts of jobs—operate your radio, cook your food, refrigerate your food, sweep your floors, wash and iron your clothes, keep you cool, curl your hair, light your cigarette, and perform a host of other tasks.

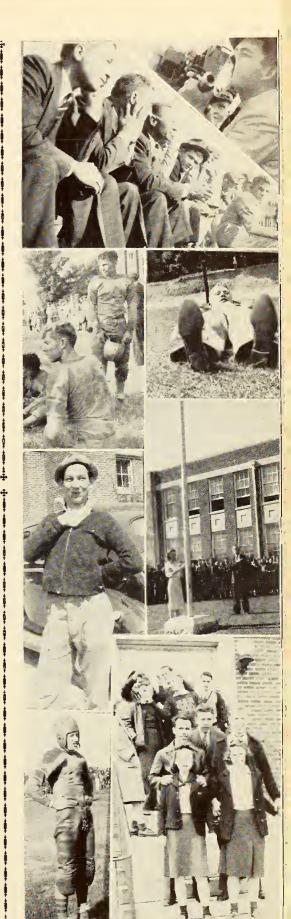

And I do all these jobs so cheaply that I can literally say: "I CERTAINLY CUT THE COST OF BETTER LIVING."

THE ANNUAL WORKERS

We sit for hours with tousled hair, Our feet propped on a chair. We wonder why we can never think, Building castles in the air.

We stamp our feet and groan again For original ideas, never used, And all this work for you, dear friends,
Only to be abused.

If we can force you to one big laugh, Or just a word of praise, We'll be willing to try again, By toiling many days.

All the jokes are old and musty; Nothing we find is new. Most all of them are old-fashioned, Even some of you.

A poem is too hard to write And wastes your time. If you don't believe it, you just try To put your thoughts in rime.

There's nothing else we can do; Originality is what we need. We know success makes a fool seem wise,

So we're working to succeed.

Marjorie Reavis

MY WISHES

I wish that I could never see
Another book until next year
Nor hear the mention of a fee
But roam the world without a fear.

I wish that I could sit along
Without a thought of lessons
Or be afraid my answers are wrong
And fear to answer questions.

I wish that I could take a rest
Without a hundred things to do
And out of life receive the best
With all my dreams come true

For next school year will bring more lore

With problems harder yet I need a rest without a bore. Then I should not even fret.

"THE KIDD"

By Jane Cannon, Reynolds "Land Ho!"

As the Adventure Galley, topped by the black and white Jolly Roger, neared Madagascar, Captain William Kidd came on deck to view for the first time the isle of his dreams—his dreams of gold. How many times had he seen this very coast on his treasured map! How many times, his men gathered around him, had he traced the trail to the buried temple! Here he saw Madagascar before him, gold somewhere on its 288,000 square miles and within his grasp.

They sailed up the coast and, because of Madagascar's many rocks and lagoons, dropped anchor between the mainland and St. Marie, an island on the east coast. Carrying a supply of provisions, they rowed to the mainland.

'The crew scrambled out, half ran, half swam from boats to shore. They shouted with joy, ran, swam, bathed in the beauty of the land, in their thoughts of gold. Captain Kidd, who, in 1696, was approaching middle age, sent his men to explore the coast land.

Tall palms and abony trees bordered the coast, with a belt of fifteen or twenty miles of dense forest beyond. The men had found the ravinala, or traveler's tree, from which they were drinking the refreshing liquid of its fruit, as they would later of the cocoanut, which grew further inland. Before him he saw the mountains, through which the setting sun cast its gloriously golden rays.

Golden rays, indeed! In sooth, gold itself! There it lay, buried deep in the temple of Nosse, itself buried by lava of volcanoes long since dead.

"Gold!" Gathered around the knobbed trunks, wild with joy, the men ran their fingers through it, danced around it, and in their joy seemed oblivious of all the beauty of the temple—its carved idols, ivory water vessels, and other relics of yesteryear.

They had traveled seventy-five miles inland, dug two days in the temple, and now they must carry the treasure back.

With only the first part of it out of the temple yet, the men had stopped to rest and refresh themselves from the rayinala's fruit.

"THE KIDD"

The ground, still slighty soft from the season's rain, held their footprints, out of the temple and back again, as a clay molding holds its cast.

A splashing from the river caused them to turn. They peered cautiously at the river from behind the trees. Lumbering leisurely out of the water were four or five pale green crocodiles.

"Strike my colors!" cried the excited Captain Kidd. Gathering around him, the men saw—a footprint! In the silence of awe that followed, they heard the faraway beat of native tom-toms. Already some seventy-five miles inland and worn with their hardships of travel, tired from their days of digging, the men look toward their captain for advice—what were they to do? Armed to the teeth, they yet seemed weak before a tribe of native warriors.

The numerous birds overhead suddently flocked together and seemed to cast an ominous cloud over the men. It was an ill omen, a foreshadowing of bad luck. What were they to do?

While they pondered, soft footsteps padded in the forest and white eyes gleamed from ebony faces.

Suddenly finding themselves surrounded by native figures that seemed to have melted from black forest, the men were quick to draw but found it futile. A hasty glance at the crocodiles proved that there was no escape from the river.

There they were, surrounded by the dreaded Hovas, ruling tribe of the Malagasy. They fought desperately for their lives, but were overcome at last. They huddled together and talked in low tones.

Struck by spears and motioned forward, they slowly ascended the path up the mountain. Over swinging native bridges, through dense tropical jungles, past resting lizards and chameleons, they were led to the Hovas main village, almost hidden at the foot of a large mountain. A large clearing was directly in front of what appeared to be the chief's abode. He himself was resting under an oddly fashioned umbrella before his adobe hut.

Not a word had been spoken by the natives during the trip, but upon arrival at the village, orders were suddenly flung here and there in a Malayan language, foreign to all the pirates.

Stakes, set at even intervals, were designated for each one, and each was carried to his stake by two strong black Hovas. One freed himself, but no sooner had he done so than twice as many more were upon him and he was bound, like the others, by the narrow but strong forest vines.

All through the night preparations were made for them, and around midnight, when the fire was brightest and hottest, the war dance began. Everyone took part, from the oldest veteran to the youngest child.

Bells on knees emphasized the crackling of the flames, and stamping feet were heedless of the hot sparks thrown from the fire.

The men, growing desperate, their hair and clothing signed from the outskirts of the fire, watched the dance with dilated eyes and fast beating hearts.

Their gold taken from them, captured by natives, and ready to be burned, there seemed no hope for them.

"Billy! Time to come in."

"O. K., Mom."

The children threw aside their paper hats, drew the Jolly Roger from the pole over the tub, and went in to eat their supper and later to dream of their golden treasure.

The king was in his counting house Counting out his money The queen was in the parlor Eating bread and honey. Doesn't she care about her figure?

THE JITTERBUGS WHO LIVED IN A SHOE

There was an old woman who lived in a shoe

She had so many Jitterbugs she didn't know what to do.

There was Flat-foot Floogie and Sweet Sue

And Josephine and Martha, too.

The kid named Joe and Annabella

And the girl who lost her basket, yellow

And I musn't forget Ferdinand and Annie

For they help make up the children many

She told them to "swing it" and "beat it out"

Or, for their bread they would surely pout

So The Whirling Dervish grabbed Sweet Sue

And they started doing the Suzy Q.

They sang for their supper and danced for it too

Until they wore out the old lady's shoe.

Nature as I see it Is such a lovely sight, So full of breathless splendor, So appealing in my sight.

It means so very much When I'm all alone and blue, To go accompany nature, In a secret rendevous.
